Waterpark opening pushed back to June 20

By Robin Jordan

Despite earlier projections that Butte's new Ridge Waters waterpark would be open for business by the Memorial Day weekend, opening day has now been delayed until mid-June, according to Parks & Recreation Director J.P. Gallagher.

Gallagher told commissioners last week that even though work is continuing to progress on the aquatic facility and other improvements to the park, several factors led to the delay, including weather. The ground has not dried out enough for crews to complete some site work, Gallagher said.

Weather had other impacts as well, Gallagher said. Some of the NorthWestern Energy crews needed went south to deal with the effects of hurricanes in the south, delaying work on relocating utilities in the park. There was also a delay in receiving a permit needed from the state, Gallagher said.

Even though the waterpark opening will be delayed, crews have made a lot of progress on other areas of park improvement, Gallagher said. The old tennis courts have been removed. One storm water collection pond has been completed and a second is being excavated and will be lined. In addition, crews have installed 240 feet of 8-inch storm water line, 368 feet of 12-inch storm water line, 630 feet of 6-inch water line and a new fire hydrant. Work is now in progress on installing gas and electrical service lines.

Gallagher said the county now expects work on the pool building will be substantially complete by May 23. Work on the pool should be complete on June 18 and the current plan is to open it to the public on June 20.

The delay in the pool's opening might not be such a bad thing, Gallagher said, as work is currently underway on replacing water lines and street reconstruction on Dewey Boulevard in the area of the park, which could hamper access.

Gallagher said the main concern at this point is having all the work done completely and correctly, not rushing to meet the early deadline. He said the public has made a large investment in the project and deserves to have everything completed and in working order by the time the aquatic center opens. In future years, he said,

Opening of Butte's new Ridge Waters Waterpark has been pushed back to June 20 due to a number of factors, but work on the facility and other improvements at Stodden Park is progressing daily. Photo by Dave Jordan

there should be no problem in opening the pool for the Memorial Day weekend, because the water will be heated to 85 degrees.

Gallagher said because of the delayed opening, the county will not be selling season pool passes this year, but will have multi-use punch-cards available for purchase. He said the county will soon launch a website where the public can get price information, buy punch-cards and donate to or apply for low-income discounts.

In a separate matter, Gallagher told commissioners his department is making plans to ban all shooting on county land behind the Big M. He said the county posted signs after a number of citizen complaints about people shooting high-power rifles in the direction of the Big M where there are a number of walking trails, but they were quickly riddled with bullet holes. In addition, he said, garbage dumping has continued to be a growing problem.

"Two years ago, everything was picked up, but now it's even worse," he said. "There's garbage anywhere that people can drive."

Gallagher said the area behind the Big M is zoned as an open-space park, and no shooting is allowed in the county's parks. He said the county can close the area to shooting without commissioners taking any further action. He said there is a shooting range at Rocker that people can use instead.

"I hate to close it down, but it's the right thing to do," Gallagher said.

Gallagher said his department is getting estimates on fencing the area with barbed wire, rather than the jack-leg fence already in place on part of the Big M area.

Stodden Park feels like a war zone for softball fans

Bill Foley

When high school softball players step into the batter's box, they wear a helmet to protect their head.

The catcher behind the plate is basically covered in a suit of armor, and the umpire wears pads and a mask covering his face.

In most games, the pitcher and corner infielders also wear masks to protect their faces from being crushed by a softball, which is not soft at all.

When it comes to the players' grandmas in the crowd, however, we figure, "Ah, it will probably miss 'em."

This is the world of Stodden Park, where you watch softball games at your own risk.

Stodden hosted most of the games for Butte Central's annual LaVerne Combo Invitational softball tournament Friday and Saturday, and those big, yellow, hard, softballs had the crowd ducking and dodging as they gathered around the three fields.

Players on neighboring fields also had to dodge incoming balls, as if playing third base wasn't a hot enough corner to worry about with one ball coming your way.

The tournament, like all times when Stodden has all three fields going at once, was like watching a softball tournament in a war zone.

An athletic trainer at the event said that 90 percent of the injuries they treat during the tournament are those people get from being hit by a ball.

She wasn't talking about batters, either. She was talking about spectators and players who are not in the field of play getting hit.

Most of those injuries are minor, but they are all scary. So are the tons of near misses.

One injury looked absolutely horrific as Butte Central played Frenchtown on Friday evening.

A player from Libby was standing outside the third-base dugout on Field No. 3 following the Loggers' game with Hamilton. She was smiling and laughing, and could not see the ball coming her way.

A Frenchtown batter hit a flair of a foul ball that just cleared the first-base dugout on Field No. 2. It came so fast, that nobody could even yell "heads" in time, and the ball struck the Libby player in the right temple.

The girl started to raise her hand to where the ball hit her, then she collapsed. She was knocked out cold.

When the Central-Frenchtown game resumed, the Frenchtown player who hit the foul ball reached on an infield single. She stood on first base bawling her eyes out.

It was as if she was blaming herself for something that could not possibly be her fault.

Fortunately, athletic trainers and a firefighter were nearby to make sure the Libby girl received the attention she needed.

Eventually, she was brought to her feet and she left with her team. The next morning, though, she had to be sent back to Libby, missing her team's final two games.

Clearly concussed, the player was suffering a severe headache and dizziness. Her softball season is over because an injury she sustained while laughing with friends.

The saddest thing about this incident is that it could have been easily prevented by a better netting system at Stodden Park.

About a decade ago, the county put a series of nets up between the three fields. They are not nearly enough because they don't protect any spectators outside of the area behind home plate.

The nets also give the fans a false sense of security because on two of the three fields there is a gap where the net meets the backstop.

Earlier Friday, a mother was standing by her next to her baby, who was in a stroller, feeling safe because she was under a net.

Then, a ball slammed onto the ground, somehow finding the small area between the mom and her baby. That baby just might have missed being killed by a matter of inches. At a softball game.

A couple of years ago, a woman was hit and injured badly at a game at Fenway Park in Boston. Since then, the Red Sox and other Major League Baseball teams have extended netting to protect their fans from foul balls.

Even before they added the nets at MLB parks, watching a softball tournament at Stodden Park was 100 times more dangerous than any baseball stadium. That's because at a baseball game, fans are watching the game.

At Stodden fans are being picked off by the games they are not watching. Nobody can watch all three games at the same time.

Butte-Silver Bow and the Butte School District have done some great work at Stodden Park over the last few years. They the players now have better dugouts and a great infield surface to play on.

A lot of money and work is also being put into the playground area at Stodden. With the carousel, waterpark and new playground, Stodden Park will be one of the best places in the state.

During softball games, though, it will also be one of the most dangerous.

In previous years, foul balls would sail right into the playground, where sheer luck protected the children.

In Anaconda, they have a net covering the playground at the Charlotte Yeoman-Martin Complex, where the Copperheads play softball.

Yes, we are taking a back seat to Anaconda when it comes to the safety of our children. And, Anaconda is the place where they built that giant deathtrap of a slide not far from the softball fields.

A year or two before the nets were put up at Stodden, a woman was hit in the side of the head by a pop up foul on the field behind her. Before the trainers were able to get ice to the woman, a local lawyer had his business card in the women's hand.

Whether or not the woman used that card is hard to say, but somebody will someday. It is only a matter of time. Maybe the parents of the Libby girl will. Really, would you blame them if they did?

It would not take much for the county to string a cable from the backstops to the light polls that are past the bases on each field and install nets that will keep most of the ball in the field.

It wouldn't take much to connect those nets overhead to make sure the spectators are really safe as they watch the games.

Sure, it will cost some money to do this, but it will probably cost less than the lawyer fees that are eventually coming. It will cost way less than the settlement the county and possibly the school district and Butte Central will have to pay.

Not fixing this problem is nothing short of negligence.

So is letting the players' grandmas watch the games without a suit of armor.

Thompson Park MeetUp Hikes to Begin May 16

The Beaverhead-Deerlodge NF is participating in the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the National Trails System Act. Several activities will be organized throughout the summer starting with weekly hikes in Thompson Park with members of the Butte-Silver Bow Hiking MeetUp Group.

Beginning Wednesday, May 16 and continuing every Wed. through June 20, evening hikes will be led on trails within Thompson Park. Hikes will leave the Sagebrush Flats parking lot at 6 p.m. and offer an easy hike and a longer hike for participants. Easy hikes will be about 45 minutes to 1 hour at an easy pace on trails with moderate elevation gain. Longer hikes will be faster paced, about 1.5 to 2 hours with more elevation gain. Hikes will become more challenging each week.

This program is offered jointly by the Forest Service and the Butte Silver Bow Hiking MeetUp Group. For more information about the hikes contact the Butte Ranger District at (406) 494-2147, or www.meetup.com/Butte-Silverbow-Hiking-Meetup/.

Sick of illegal garbage dumping

By Robin Jordan

Last week Butte-Silver Bow's Parks & Recreation Director J.P. Gallagher told commissioners plans are in the works to ban shooting behind the Big M. People have been shooting high-power rifles toward the M, where many local residents like to hike, bike and walk with their dogs on the trails. We agree with Gallagher that if shooting is allowed to continue, it's only a matter of time before it ends in tragedy.

Another issue in that area is garbage dumping. Two years ago, a Montana Tech student organized a wholesale cleanup effort behind the Big M and virtually all of the litter and garbage was cleaned up. Today, Gallagher said, the garbage problem is even worse than it was then. Virtually everywhere the roads go, people have dumped their trash.

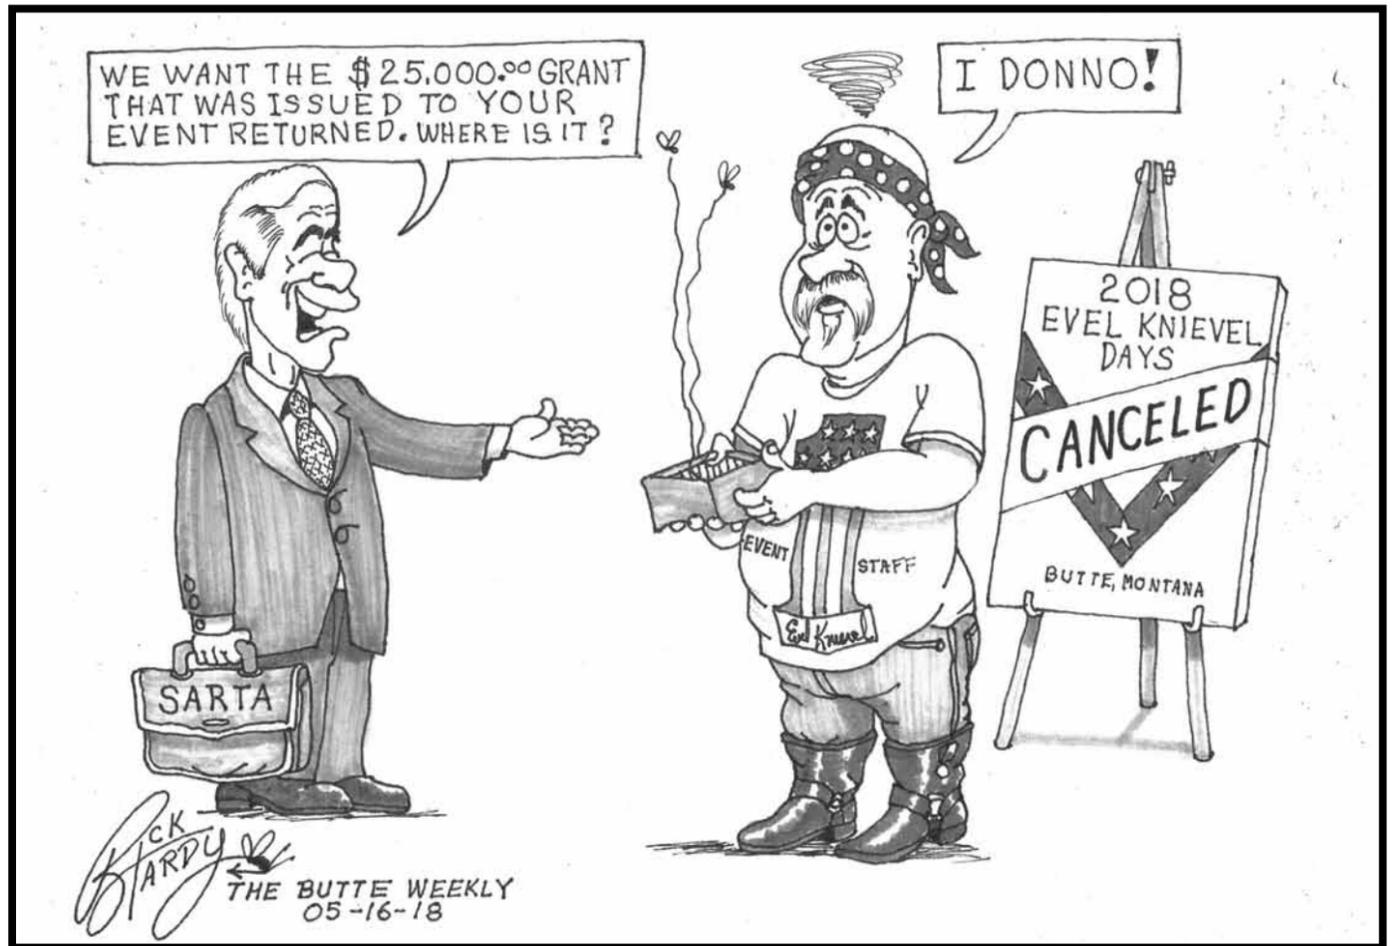

The illegal dumping seems ridiculous, since the local landfill is just minutes away from the area. Even if people want to dump their junk at times when the landfill is closed, there's an after-hours area just across the road.

The garbage and litter problem isn't confined to the area behind the Big M, either. We like to take our dogs out to several remote spots around Butte where they can play off-leash for a while, and we're constantly dismayed to find that others have dumped their garbage or left litter on the trails, in campsites or even down near creeks where it can get into the stream.

We know others like to use these same spots, so we carry garbage bags with us and often spend half our outing picking up trash. It's gotten worse at some locations, and we're finding more large junk like old car parts and household appliances dumped along the roads. You have to wonder why folks leave this stuff where it's obvious that others like to camp and hike.

When we find bottles, cans, food wrappers and shooting debris like spent shells and broken clay targets, we figure people are just lazy and weren't taught to "pack it in, pack it out." When we find parts of an old stove, half a burnt carpet or discarded auto parts, we have to figure someone deliberately drove out to the country to dump it there. Why in the heck would you do that?

We have to think it's some kind of willful stupidity that makes some people want to dump trash in recreation areas and along the county roads. It's the same kind of stupidity that causes some to cut down a bunch of trees (and not the kind of trees that burn well) to make a campfire in an area where there's plenty of deadwood all over the place. It's the same stupidity that makes some hotrod their ATVs or motorbikes through the mud where there are no roads, leaving deep ruts through the fields and digging up the vegetation.

Maybe you can't fix this kind of stupidity, but we applaud the decision to fence the county's open space behind the Big M and ban shooting there. It may be sad for those responsible shooters who use the area, but we hope it will cut down on the garbage dumping and prevent some horrible accident. We hope the county budgets for fence repair, though. Willful stupidity is darned hard to fix.

Wealth Inequality is the Intent of Neoliberal Policy

By George Waring

Last week I noted that in order to be considered a member of the prestigious Forbes 400 in 2016 you had to have amassed nearly $2 billion of net worth. When Forbes produced its first 400 list back in 1982, you only had to have $80 million. Now, to be a real American oligarch you must be worth almost two thousand million! Yes, $2,000,000,000.

How could a rich guy with less than 100 million have amassed two thousand million in just 34 years?

Easy! Those 34 years saw the presidencies of Ronald Reagan, George H. W. Bush, Bill Clinton, George W. Bush, and Barack Obama. Or, a continuity in policy by federal governments wedded to neoliberalism.

First, a word about the data used to trace this fast-growing wealth gap between our rulers and the bottom 90% of us. According to the Center for Budget and Public Policy the "main source of data for the distribution of household wealth is the Federal Reserve's Survey of Consumer Finances, which is conducted every three years." The Federal Reserve first issued this survey in 1983.

The latest survey showed that the top 1 percent of income earners received about a quarter of all income in 2016, while the top 1 percent of the wealth owners had nearly 40% of all wealth. The top 10 percent of income earners received a bit more than 50% of all income, while the top 10 percent of wealth owners held more than 75% of our society's wealth.

The survey data shows that wealth is becoming more and more concentrated within the top 1%. "Little change for the rest of the richest 10 percent." However, the bottom 90% reports wealth shrinkage. "The share of wealth held by the top 1 percent rose from just under 30 percent in 1989 to 38.6 percent in 2016. The share held by the bottom 90 percent fell from 33.2 percent in 1989 to 22.8 percent in 2016.

Now that's a big loss. The bottom 90% has lost a third of its wealth since 1989.

What's been going haywire for nine out of ten of us?

According to the Congressional Budget Office, ("Trends in Family Wealth, 1989-2013") since 1989, only America's most affluent families have added to their net worth.

Why has our oligarchy done so well?

Professor Colin Gordon, historian at the University of Iowa, has been developing answers to such questions for twenty years. You'll find his work featured on Inequality.org: "Growing Apart: A Political History of American Inequality."

Gordon maintains that "American inequality is exceptional"

"By any measure, we are more unequal now than we have ever been, and we are more unequal—by a long shot—than our peers among developed and democratic nations."

Gordon maintains that our oligarchy designed it this way. It "is not an unhappy consequence of unrelenting market and historical forces." Today's inequality "is a direct and tangible result of public policies whose very design and intent was to redistribute income and wealth upwards."

Gordon reminds us the government policies that ended the Great Depression and guided post-war Presidents from Truman through Lyndon Johnson, were not terminated by "economic necessity." Rather, the conservative capitalists in charge of this society's corporations adopted a political agenda whose intent was to create an economically unequal nation.

Like Noam Chomsky, Colin Gordon names the Big Tobacco lobbyist and Nixon-appointed future Supreme Court Justice, Lewis Powell, as the individual who laid out the strategy for burying the New Deal and its Great Society continuation. It was Powell's memorandum to the chairman of the US Chamber of Commerce's Education Committee in 1971, a memo entitled "Attack on American Free Enterprise System," that launched our age of growing inequality.

Gordon writes, "The conservative ascendance in state and national politics affirmed these choices across the political landscape, with dramatic consequences."

These consequences included "steep cuts in social spending, the political abandonment of organized labor, deregulation and privatization, tax cuts, and punitive cycles of unemployment." All these conservative political policies were "justified in the name of lowering business costs, capturing economic efficiencies, and unleashing markets."

Gordon writes that conservative rhetoric "camouflaged the real goal of the pushback against the New Deal: a redistribution of income upward via the erosion of the hard-earned bargaining power of ordinary Americans. Rising inequality was not a lamentable side effect of America's new policy framework; it was its intent."

Carousel Corner

By Larry Hoffman

Here is the news everyone has been waiting for.

We are shooting for opening June 20, about the same time as the new pool!

There is a lot of work yet to be done, but we think we can git 'er done. How's she go? She's gotta go!

Horses and other items are being moved from their long storage at the Butte Plaza Mall. Part of that work is sorting out what needs to go and what can go in a big garage sale that will be held Saturday, May 19th, from 10:00 until 3:00 at the Spirit of Columbia Gardens gift shop in the mall.

We have started to hang the horses on the carousel, a slow process since there are inconsistencies unforeseen when they were carved and the attachments, like the stirrups, were made. The work will go faster now that we have identified the issues and can plan for them.

The wheelchair lift is nearly ready, as are the two chariots that will comfortably accommodate either wheelchairs or just sit-down riders who want to take a spin without climbing aboard one of the wild ponies.

Wiring, lighting, plumbing, painting, installation of fixtures, decorations, and other end-of-project work is being pushed as fast as our volunteers can do it. Having deadline gives everyone a little extra incentive.

Because of the long winter, the landscaping around our Carousel will not be complete until fall, so we won't be totally beautiful from the outside. The only exterior amenities will be the walkway from the parking lot to the front portico, then on through the gorgeous front doors into a different world that will bring back great memories of Columbia Gardens for those who were there, and create new ones for younger people.

In addition to the carousel itself, there will be a food and drink concession area, gift shop, museum, carving and paint rooms, and a large room for events, such as parties, reunions, and other group gatherings.

When the weather is nice, there are two large roll-up doors that open out into a patio area in back for open-air relaxation and snacking.

This summer will be a bit of a mess around our Carousel and the Aquatic Facility as work will be going on full-time to complete all the changes involved in the Stodden Park Improvement Project, funded by the Washington Foundation. A new access west to Rowe Road, more parking, a central pavilion between the two, tennis courts, picnic area, and ponds. On the other side of the parking lot a large new playground is going in.

We may not be pretty this summer, but we'll be fun.

Contributions to the project may be made by PayPal from our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/pages/Spirit-of-Columbia-Gardens-Carousel, or the website, <http://www.buttecarousel.com/>, by mail to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703, or in person at the Mall shop. We are a 501(c)3 non-profit that also may qualify for employer matching donations.

If you have any comments or suggestions, or would like to volunteer to help, please let us know! Call the office at 494-7775, or stop by the site. We are not there all the time, but as much as we can!

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Debbie McLarnon

How Can You Meet Your Short-term Goals?

Why do you invest? If you're like most people, you'd probably say that, among other things, you want to retire comfortably. Obviously, that's a worthy long-term goal, requiring long-term investing. But as you journey through life, you'll also have short-term goals, such as buying a second home, remodeling your kitchen or taking a much-needed vacation. Will you need to invest differently for these goals than you would for the long-term ones?

In short, when investing for long-term goals, you're seeking significant growth and, in doing so, you'll have to accept some degree of investment risk. But when you're after short-term goals, the formula is somewhat different: You don't need maximum growth potential as much as you need to be reasonably confident that a certain amount of money will be there for you at a certain time.

Liquidity – Some short-term investments have specific terms – i.e., two years, three years, five years, etc. – meaning you do have an incentive to hold these investments until they mature. Otherwise, if you cash out early, you might pay some price, such as loss of value or loss of the income produced by these investments. Nonetheless, these types of investments are usually not difficult to sell, either before they mature or at maturity, and this liquidity will be helpful to you when you need the money to meet your short-term goal.

To answer that question, let's first look at how you might invest to achieve your longer-term goals. For these goals, the key investment ingredient is growth – quite simply, you want your money to grow as much as possible over time. Consequently, you will likely want a good percentage of growth-oriented vehicles, such as stocks and other stock-based investments, to fund your 401(k), IRA or other accounts.

You may want to work with a financial professional to select the appropriate investments for your short-term goals. But, in general, you'll need these investments to provide you with the following attributes:

Protection of principal – As mentioned above, when you own stocks, you have no assurance that your principal will be preserved; there's no agency, no government office, guaranteeing that you won't lose money. And even some of the investments best suited for short-term goals won't come with full guarantees, either, but, by and large, they do offer you a reasonable amount of confidence that your principal will remain intact.

However, the flip side of growth is risk. Stocks and stock-based investments will always fluctuate in value – which means you could lose some, or even all, of your principal. Hopefully, though, by putting time on your side – that is, by holding your growth-oriented investments for decades – you can overcome the Stability of issuer – Although most investments suitable for short-term goals do provide a high degree of preservation of principal, some of the issuers of these investments are stronger and more stable than others – and these strong and stable issuers are the ones you should stick with.

Ultimately, most of your investment efforts will probably go toward your long-term goals. But your short-term goals are still important – and the right investment strategy can help you work toward them.

More Fruits and Vegetables

We have all become more aware of how good it is to eat plentiful amounts of fruits and vegetables. They are generally low in calories and nutrient dense. It is important to eat enough so our diets are well balanced and include essential nutrients. If fruits and vegetables are a part of every meal and snack we can lower the calories in our day, assisting in health and weight maintenance or loss.

Start by figuring out how many servings of fruits and vegetables you currently include regularly each day in your diet. If it is less than one serving per day, work on a consistent one serving each day. If you generally eat one serving, work toward two servings per day until that is accomplished. I'm sure you get the picture and you can keep adding servings till you are satisfied.

Start at the beginning of the day with breakfast and consider including fresh fruit. It can be cut up and added to oatmeal or other cereal. If you are a grab and go breakfast eater, a banana or apple would go well with a piece of toast and nut butter. Sautéing raw vegetables or warming those leftover and scrambling with eggs is a tasty way to start the day!

Substituting fruit or raw vegetables for chips, cookies or treats at snack time works for cutting down on fat and calories. Adding nuts, nut butters or low-calorie dips can make the snacks even more interesting and nutritious.

Salads for lunch are a great way to effortlessly add vegetables mid-day. The salad kits available in so many variations are easy to put in a lunch box and make at work as they are all-inclusive. It is a good idea to have an egg, tuna, chicken or other protein on hand to make it balanced. If you are more of a sandwich fan, you can add avocado, tomato, lettuce, onion, spinach or any other vegetable to meat, tuna or cheese for nutrition and fiber. You can even slice a banana into a peanut butter sandwich.

Dinner is our most traditional time for vegetables so be sure to remember your favorites. Think of 'my plate' and plan for half the plate to be fruit, salad and/or vegetables. Main-dish salads are great, especially in summer so there is no need to heat up the kitchen. Barbecued steak and rotisserie chicken are both delicious in a dinner salad. Think outside the box and consider making a salad with rice, quinoa, bulger, beans, chickpeas or lentils, adding lots of vegetables you like and topping with a favorite dressing.

As usual, it is best to make these changes and/or additions gradually. If you are solid with vegetables or salads in your dinner routine, focus on another time of day where you can add produce. If you are thinking of substituting fruit for other snacks, you might want to start with a couple of times a week and work up to most days. You are more likely to stick with changes you make over time.

In our lifestyle classes, I often hear participants say that they know they can improve their diet by adding fruits and vegetables. They realize it will add fiber and nutrition and fill them up, so they eat less calories overall. The harder thing is making those changes and sticking with them. Even if you can find one idea mentioned above worth trying, or if this inspires you to try one of your own, go for it! You may find you enjoy it and like it better than what you are eating now!

Energy Corps presentation at Archives May 23

The Butte-Silver Bow Public Archives will continue its Brown Bag Lunch series on Wednesday, May 23, with a presentation by Blythe Collins and Emilia Emerson about Community Sustainability. Collins and Emerson are Energy Corps interns with the National Center for Appropriate Technology (NCAT). In this presentation, they will discuss the ten principles of community sustainability within the scope of Butte-- how Butte excels in some areas and how it can continue to improve in others. Butte's unique history means that it has an enormous potential to become a center for development, industry, and tourism within Montana. The goal of Energy Corps is to outline ways this can be achieved while letting Butte remain true to its cultural heritage.

The Energy Corps AmeriCorps project is an initiative of the National Center for Appropriate Technology (NCAT) in cooperation with The Corporation for National and Community Service that was created to address unmet community energy needs by promoting sustainable energy consumption and education, fostering community sustainability and helping to mitigate the effects of global climate change. Prior to Energy Corps, Blythe Collins spent 5+ years working as a freelance teacher in Chicago, West Michigan, South Korea, and Kuwait. She joined Energy Corps in January 2018 and will serve in Butte as a SMART Schools Educator with the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ). Emilia Emerson joined Energy Corps in October 2017 and serves at NCAT as the Energy Corps Team Leader. She focuses on member support through team building, mentorship, and project coordination. She hopes to utilize her design and illustration skills to create materials that raise awareness and interest in sustainability.

The presentation will begin at noon and run about an hour at the Archives, 17 W. Quartz St. Guests are encouraged to bring a sack lunch. Coffee and water will be provided.

Brown Bag Lunches are held the second and fourth Wednesdays of every month. Upcoming lectures will focus on topics of local interest. For more information, contact the Archives at 782-3280.

Governor announces contractor for Parrot Tailings removal

Governor Steve Bullock announced last week the selection of MK Weeden Construction of Lewistown, Montana to implement Phase 1 of the Parrot Waste Removal Project in Butte, MT.

"This is a big step forward for Butte, the Upper Clark Fork River and the State of Montana," said Governor Bullock. "It's my hope this project will serve as an example of what is possible in Butte."

In March 2018 the Montana Natural Resources Damage Program (NRDP) issued the bid package for the first phase of the Project.

"Butte has been waiting for too long to get this cleanup done and it's finally going to happen," Governor Bullock said. "It's time to get folks working on moving some dirt."

Bullock originally kicked off the Project in 2015, saying "as we look at Silver Bow Creek and downstream, it is critically important that we get these tailings removed."

Butte-Silver Bow County Chief Executive Dave Palmer said, "I'm pleased this project is finally moving forward. This has been a long time coming for Butte and this is a good beginning to many millions of dollars in job creation building our restoration economy."

MK Weeden has extensive experience throughout the northwest in large earth moving projects and was the low bidder at $2,666,002.

Six other companies submitted bids on the Project that ranged from $3,323,699 to $5,527,624.

Phase I includes the removal of an estimated 76,000 cubic yards (cy) of mine waste materials; repositioning of 117,000 cy of slag under an Evaporation/Transpiration Cover System; and relocation of 167,000 cy of clean reusable overburden. In total, over 360,000 cy of materials will be moved in Phase I.

Because of Montana Resources cooperation in taking responsibility for the waste materials from the Project, NRDP's contractor will be able to stay off public roads and use very large off-road trucks and excavators. The haul trucks that MK Weeden is proposing to use can move up to 55 cy of material, which is much larger than the 14 cy trucks that can be typically used on public roads. The ability to use this larger equipment translates to a real cost savings for the Project.

Phase I should start in June and be completed by early 2019. Phase II of the Project will be initiated as soon as Butte-Silver Bow County can move its maintenance shops to a new location.

Copies of the Parrot Tailings Waste Removal Plan documents are available on the NRDP website at <https://dojmt.gov/lands/butte-area-one/> or by contacting NRDP at 406-444-0205.

What's Cooking

Salad Dressings

By Debbie Sorensen

When the sun shows up for a day or two, I get to thinking about cook-outs and some of the warm weather foods. Barbecues are a great way to showcase some of those offerings. A delicious salad with great dressing can add some panache to an otherwise simple meal.

I like to make dressings from scratch and here are two of my favorites. They come from the "Alpha Cookbook," published in 2001.

Creamy Caesar Salad Dressing

1 garlic clove 2 T. Lemon juice 2 tsp. apple cider vinegar
 ½ tsp. dry mustard 1 egg 1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
 1 c. Canola oil ¼ tsp. salt

Mix in blender; garlic clove, lemon juice, vinegar, dry mustard, egg, Worcestershire sauce, oil and salt. Blend until smooth. Chill about 2 hours. Yield: approximately 1 ¼ c. of dressing. Store in tightly covered container in the refrigerator until ready to use.

Roseanne's Poppy Seed Salad Dressing

2/3 c. white sugar 2 tsp. salt 2 tsp. dry mustard
 ½ T. onion-grated 2/3 c. cider vinegar 2 c. Canola or light Olive oil
 1 T. poppy seeds

Pour all ingredients into a blender. Blend until smooth. Store in tightly covered container in the refrigerator until ready to use. This dressing is great on everything. Try it not only on tossed salads, but also on fruit and as a marinade for chicken. Yield: approximately 3 c. of dressing.

Oswald presents State of the Big Hole Fishery

By Paul Vang

Fish like water, and fish do well when there's lots of water.

That was a takeaway from the last program meeting of the season of the George Grant Chapter of Trout Unlimited. Jim Olsen, the FWP fisheries biologist for the Big Hole River watershed was on hand to present the State of the Big Hole Fishery.

There is now a mass of statistical data about fish populations on the Big Hole River, going back to the 1970s, when the now-retired Big Hole biologist, Dick Oswald, started electrofishing the river to get a sampling of the fish population.

Oswald, who also supervised the Beaverhead River fishery, created extensive documentation that low water years result in lower fish populations. That might not seem like rocket science, but I recall presentations from Oswald in which he reported a lot of pushback from some water users, until he showed them the scientific data.

Olsen, who has been working on the Big Hole River for ten years, had data that continues to show that fish populations are generally higher following big water years, with 2011 a prime example. 2018 will likely be another of those years that will result in increased fish populations next year.

Of special interest was a look back at the impact of special regulations on portions of the Big Hole River. The Special Regs first went in effect in 1981 on the Divide to Melrose section of the river. In 1988, the upstream portion expanded to Dickie Bridge. The special regulations cut daily "catch and cook" limits from five trout to three trout, with a slot limit of fish that had to be released.

Prior to 1981, fish populations in the river tended to be around 500 fish per mile. After the special regulations went into effect, the overall size of fish in the river increased, as did overall numbers of fish. On the other hand, the numbers of large fish, trout of 20 inches or more, declined. Greater numbers of fish mean more competition for available food.

Olsen also reported on angling pressure on the Big Hole. In 2015, there was an estimated 93,478 angler days on the Big Hole River, an increase from earlier surveys. If that seems like a lot of pressure, Olsen noted that angler days on the Madison River were 298,000.

Olsen also commented, briefly, on proposals to re-establish native fish populations in the French Creek watershed, which has generated a certain amount of controversy from people opposed to the project.

Olsen underlined that one of the reasons for doing the project on French Creek is because virtually the whole watershed is on public land. He also noted that the proposed project is one of the reasons that the Fish & Wildlife Service has not put the threatened arctic grayling on the endangered species list. If the project were to be canceled it would likely change the classification.

In any event, the period for filing comments on the French Creek project has been extended to May 30. Comments can be sent by email directly to Olsen at jimolsen@mt.gov. I'm going to editorialize a bit.

I've been following comments in the local press opposing the project and can't help shaking my head in amusement and despair. The arguments against the project are primarily designed to stir up anger, but don't present any scientific basis for objecting to the project. After the TU program, I asked Olsen if anybody, at various public events, has presented anything that hadn't been presented, and scientifically shot down, during the extended fracas regarding Cherry Creek on the Madison River. He said there was nothing that hadn't been heard before.

I look forward to a westslope cutthroat fishery in the French Creek drainage. I've occasionally fished a small tributary on Rock Creek. Most of the creek isn't much wider than six feet, but I've caught wild cutthroat trout of up to 20 inches there.

I'd love to have that opportunity closer to home. There are plenty of other creeks that will still give people the opportunity to catch all the brookies they can eat. Cutts are special.

This Week In Labor History

"Look for the enemies of Medicare, of higher minimum wages, of Social Security, of federal aid to education and there you will find the enemy, the coalition of Dixiecrats and reactionary Republicans that seek to dominate the Congress."

- A. Philip Randolph, legendary Labor and Civil Rights leader

Wednesday, May 16:

Black labor leader and peace activist A. Philip Randolph dies. He was president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and first Black on the AFL-CIO executive board, and a principal organizer of the 1963 March on Washington. -1979
Baristas at the Starbucks in East Grand Rapids announced their membership in the IWW Starbucks Workers Union. Starbucks, notorious for poor treatment of workers, followed with numerous anti-labor violations and was forced by the NLRB to settle Grand Rapids Union worker complaints in October. -2007

Thursday, May 17:

Tom Mooney's scheduled date of execution was stayed while case was appealed. Mooney ultimately spent 22 years in prison for the San Francisco Preparedness Day Parade bombing in 1916, a crime he did not commit. Mooney was a member of the IWW and was ultimately railroaded because of his Union affiliation. -1917
The government seizes the nation's railroads to head off a nation-wide strike. Workers strike anyway on the 23rd and only the President's threat to draft the strikers and call up the army to run the railroads forces them back to work. -1946

Friday, May 18:

Big Bill Haywood, founding member and leader of the Industrial Workers of the World (the Wobblies), dies. Born in Utah Haywood was frequently the target of prosecutors and the anti-Union Capital interest. He was one of 101 IWW members convicted for their public opposition to the U.S. entering WWI. -1928

Oklahoma jury finds for the estate of atomic worker, Union activist, and OCAW member Karen Silkwood, orders Kerr-McGee Nuclear Co. to pay $505,000 in actual damages, $10 million in punitive damages for negligence leading to Silkwood's plutonium contamination. Silkwood was killed and all of her documentation was stolen when her car was run off the road after announcing at a Union meeting that she was going public with evidence of company wrong doing. -1979

Saturday, May 19:

216 (UMW) miners die from an explosion and its aftermath at the Fraterville Mine in Anderson County, Tenn. All but 3 of Fraterville's adult males were killed. -1902
Shootout in Matewan, W. Va., between striking Union miners (with the support of the Labor friendly Police Chief Sid Hatfield) and coal company agents. 10 were killed. The episode became known as the "Matewan Battle", and is depicted in John Sayles' film Matewan. Leading up to the battle numerous miners had been assassinated by vigilantes, goons and detectives. -1920
A total of 31 Longshoremen are killed, 350 others are injured when 4 barges carrying 467 tons of ammunition blow up at South Amboy, N.J. They were loading mines that had been deemed unsafe by the Army and were being shipped to the Asian market for sale. -1950

Sunday, May 20:

The first American public school was established in Dorchester, Ma. 148 years before the U.S. Constitution was penned. (Free Public education runs deep in our history, it's our greatest legacy, and our future.) -1639
Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) wins Free-Speech Fight, Roosevelt University, Chicago. Founded in 1905 the IWW has, for over 110 years, defended and fought for our rights guaranteed in the U.S. Bill of Rights and in support of Democracy and Union rights. -1964

Monday, May 21:

The Minneapolis General Strike by Teamsters Union leads to a pitched battle between striking Teamsters and business paid goons. -1934
The U.S. government seized control of the nation's coal mines in order to maintain production during a nationwide coal strike. Despite the government's actions, Union miners continued to strike, forcing the government to concede to many of their demands, concessions that even the mine owners refused to grant. -1946

Tuesday, May 22:

Eugene Debs (Co-founder, IWW and ARU) was thrown in prison for his role in the Pullman Railway Strike (also known as the "Debs Rebellion"). -1895

Reader endorses Whelan for District Court Judge seat

It is with warmest regards that I offer my recommendation to Bob Whelan as a candidate for District Court Judge.

I have had the opportunity to know and work with Bob as a volunteer for 12+ years. Bob and I, both having swimmers on the Butte Tarpon Swim Team, served as board members and board officers together for many years. Bob also took over the coordination of the home swim meets so I worked closely with him both in getting the meet organized and running the timing console. As our kids got older, Bob and I volunteered as officials and could often be seen on the decks of swim meets across the state for both age-group swimming and high school events. Bob has a passion for helping people and that was obvious by his efforts for the local swim club.

Many years later, Bob was there for me and my family as a close friend after the death of my son, Jacob. Simply put, Bob stepped up to help and support us at a critical time. In the spring of 2014 when we began organizing the beginnings of the Jacob Wheeler Foundation, Bob was an easy choice as a board member. He is a person with the kind of integrity that my family wanted to help represent the foundation. Bob has been on that board since 2014 and has played a critical role in making sure our annual Lantern Lighting event is a success.

I have had several opportunities to use Bob's services as an attorney - from helping with wills to handling the transfers of business equipment and property. Bob is someone I trust to get the job done and reputably honor my interests.

It is clear from writing this letter that our relationship has developed over the years from swim dads ribbing each other about who was going to win the Cat/Griz games and helping to lead the local swim club where our kids were involved to very good friends. I am fortunate that we crossed paths many years ago. I have a deep respect for Bob's commitment to family, friends, profession, and community and I know he will carry that commitment forward as the District Court Judge.

Butte-Silver Bow Public Library is excited to announce the new season of Check Out the Performing Arts! In partnership with The Mother Lode Theater, Butte Symphony, and Butte Community Concerts, BSBPL will once again offer ticketing for check out to library patrons. Tickets will be available at the Reference Desk on the second floor one week prior to show time. Patrons may check out one ticket and must have their library card with them. Please call the library for more information or ticket availability at 406-723-3361.

First Fridays, new informational noontime series on the first Friday each month in the Big Butte room on the third floor of the Butte Public Library. In the tradition of the Westside Shakespeare Club (a Chautauqua here in Butte), First Fridays is dedicated to exploring our world, our history, and literary works. If you would like more information about this program, please contact Shari Curtis at 406-723-3361.

The Butte Public Library's Loosely Knit Club meets every Tuesday from 1-3 at the Library to knit, crochet, or craft together in a welcoming and supportive environment. For information, please call 723-3361 or visit butte-publiclibrary.info
