Council Divided Over Adding New Positions

By Robin Jordan

It took a tie-breaking vote by Chief Executive Dave Palmer last week to advance the county's preliminary budget that includes five new staff positions as commissioners remain deeply divided on whether those positions should be added.

After long and often tense discussion, commissioners first voted 7-5 to deny the recommendation of the council's finance and budget committee to approve the preliminary budget without new positions then split 6-6 on a motion to approve the budget with the positions included, with Palmer casting the deciding vote for approval.

Commissioners Brendan McDonough, Cindi Shaw, Dan Callahan, John Sorich, Dan Olsen and Sheryl Ralph voted for approval and Commissioners Dan Foley, Bud Walker, Bill Andersen, John Morgan, Jim Fisher and Cindy Perdue-Dolan voted against the motion.

The positions include a construction supervisor in the public works department with a salary of $72,000 and $33,000 in additional benefits; a certified arborist in the community enrichment department, who would take on duties previously performed by the county's Extension Service Agent; an accountant for the county's URA and RRA programs, who would take on duties previously performed under contract; and an accountant for the Parks and Recreation and the Government Buildings Divisions. The plan also proposes paying Jon Sesso $45,000 from mining damage settlement funds as a half-time Superfund coordinator to continue these duties as part of a succession plan as he prepares to step down as the county's planning director.

Several commissioners said they were wary of approving a preliminary budget that included all five positions, saying they wanted to weigh the costs and benefits of each individually.

Shaw urged her fellow commissioners to pass the preliminary budget as presented, saying the vote

Forty eight years after he was declared missing in action, the remains of Captain Robert E. Holton, USAF arrived at Bozeman Yellowstone International Airport last weekend and were driven to his hometown of Butte, accompanied by a procession of more than 100 motorcyclists and others to be laid at rest at Sunset Memorial Gardens. Photos by David Jordan was needed to move the budget process forward. She said commissioners would have time to weigh the new positions and they could make changes, including eliminating one or more of them, in the weeks leading up to passage of a final budget sometime in August.

Foley disagreed, saying that in the past, few changes have been made once the county's preliminary budget is passed. He has argued in past weeks that the county cannot justify adding new positions when the Butte economy is not growing.

"Make no mistake, if you are voting for this motion, you will be voting for all five positions," he told commissioners.

The opening date of the public hearing on the budget has been changed from July 26 to Aug. 2. The public hearing will remain open until the council of commissioners adopts its final budget, tentatively on Aug. 14, but that date could be pushed back.

Applications now available for 'Dress a Child' program

Getting kids ready to start a new school year is a financial strain for a lot of area families who would otherwise be unable to provide needed supplies and clothing for their children. United Way of Butte and Anaconda's "Dress a Child" program, helps local families and their school age children begin another school year on par with their peers.

For the last four years parents were asked to sign up their children at the Salvation Army. Currently the local Salvation Army office is closed. This year's applications can be picked up at: United Way - 1880 Harrison Avenue, Lower Level, Western Montana Mental Health, Childs Center- 600 Dewey Boulevard, Suite B, Big Brothers Big Sisters of Silver Bow, Inc. - 65 East Broadway, Butte 4 C's - 101 North Main St. Action Inc - 25 West Silver St., Butte-Silver Bow Health Department- 25 West Front St.

Completed applications must be turned in at the United Way office, 1880 Harrison Avenue, Lower Level, by August 18, 2017.

During this event each student will be paired with a volunteer "Shopping Buddy" to help them shop for school clothing. Each child will be afforded $100. Volunteers will ensure each child has the basics such as undergarments, socks and shoes, in addition to clothing of their choice.

United Way's goal this year is 170 students and 100 volunteers. Each volunteer will assist 1-3 children in Kindergarten through the 8th grade. Shopping will occur Tuesday, August 22nd at Walmart.

The United Way is currently working with the Denver office of the Salvation Army to also, hopefully, distribute their School Supplies Backpacks at this event.

What's Cooking

Frozen Lemon Cream
By Debbie Sorensen

My mom's mother was another good cook. During the 1950's, Alma Lee cooked at the East Glacier Hotel for several seasons. She would delight in telling us stories about some of the famous and infamous people she helped serve while they were visiting Glacier Park. We were so impressed with the garnishes she added to dishes. Granny did amazing things while plating the food when serving up something for a special occasion. She could manage to make the simplest fare beckon you to the table.

While the following recipe is not one of Granny's, it's very similar to a creation of hers. "The Complete Holiday Cookbook" was a gift from her when I launched out on my own. It has served me and my family well over the years. Perhaps you'd enjoy serving this refreshing dessert during the "dog days of summer" we seem to be heading toward.

| 1 egg, well beaten                | 1/4 c. lemon juice                |
| 1/2 c. sugar                      | 1/8 tsp. salt                     |
| 1 tsp. shredded lemon peel        | 1/2 tsp. vanilla                  |
| 2 or 3 drops yellow food coloring | 1/4 c. melted butter or margarine |
| 1/2 c. brown sugar, firmly packed | pinch of freshly grated nutmeg    |
| 1/2 c. chopped nuts               | 3 c. Corn Chex cereal,            |
| 3/4 c. grated coconut             | 1 c. heavy cream, whipped         |

Line bottom and sides of loaf pan with waxed paper; extend paper over rim. Combine egg, lemon juice, sugar, salt and lemon peel. Heat and stir over hot, not boiling water until mixture coats spoon, about 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla and food coloring. Cool thoroughly. Combine butter, brown sugar and nutmeg. Add nuts and Chex crumbs. Mix until evenly blended. Reserve 3/4 c. crumb mixture for topping. Press remaining crumbs into prepared pan. Fold coconut and whipped cream into cooled lemon mixture. Spoon into pan. Top with reserved crumbs. Press crumbs together lightly. Cover; freeze 6 hours or overnight. Serve with a sprig of mint and several fresh raspberries. Yield: 8 servin

Butte-Silver Bow seeking name for new pool

Butte-Silver Bow is asking the public's help in naming the new pool at Stodden Park.

Entries will be accepted through September 30th, 2017, at which point a Pool Naming Committee will review the names and submit 3 names to the Parks and Recreation Board on October 16th. The Parks and Recreation Board will choose the final name and make a recommendation to the Council of Commissioners on their October 18th Meeting. The new name will be announced on October 19th if approved by the Council of Commissioners.

Orphan Girl Theatre Announces its 20th Anniversary Season

In the Fall of 1997, the Busch sisters left their legacy in the Orphan Girl Theatre by donating the money to renovate a theatre space specifically dedicated to producing theatre for the young artists of Butte. In March of 1998, the first show was The Emperor's New Clothes, setting off the Orphan Girl Theatre, the Butte Center for the Performing Arts and now Orphan Girl Children's Theatre (OGCT) on a fantastic journey.

This season, OGCT is proud to be producing a lineup of shows that has a little of something for everyone.

The season starts with "Disney's The Lion King Jr. Experience," which runs on the Orphan Girl Theatre Stage October 13 - 22. Next, the cast will rock out on the Mother Lode stage with "Camp Rock the Musical" from November 2 - 5. All of Southwest Montana will get in the Christmas spirit with "A Christmas Carol: A Live Radio Play," which will be nestled in the Orphan Girl Theatre December 7 - 10.

As we step into 2018, OGCT will pay tribute to the first show ever produced in the Orphan Girl Theatre by creating and producing a new adaptation of "The Emperor's New Clothes," to run on the Orphan Girl Theatre stage March 2 - 11. OGCT will remount its successful play festival "10/24" as part of their regular season at the Covellite Theatre on April 14th. To round out the season, OGCT will present "Into the Woods" on the Mother Lode Theatre stage April 26 - 29th.

Head to www.orphangirl.org to learn more about OGCT, see upcoming classes and also find out how you can donate to make sure every young artist in Butte can fulfil their dreams of making theater.

Orphan Girl Children's Theatre is located in the basement of the Mother Lode Theatre in Historic Uptown Butte.

Butte Community Celebrations, Inc. announced they have met all criteria required by the IRS, State of Montana, Dept. of Revenue and Dept. of Justice to finalize the dissolution of their organization. Remaining assets have been distributed in accordance with 501 (c) 3 rules. Donation of assets went to Spirit of Columbia Gardens Carousel - $1,936 and the Butte America Foundation - $968.

Home at last

By Robin Jordan

Last week, Butte finally welcomed Captain Robert E. Holton, USAF home.

Holton's plane was shot down over Laos in January, 1969, 48 years ago. He was first declared Missing in Action and later Killed in Action, but his remains were not found until early this year. Finally last week, his coffin was flown to Bozeman and driven to Butte, where services were held at Wayrynen-Richards Funeral Home and he was buried at Sunset Memorial Gardens last Saturday.

At Bozeman Yellowstone International Airport, more than 100 motorcyclists, members of Montana POW/MIA Awareness and Patriot Guard and other groups gathered to participate in an honor guard and procession from Bozeman to Butte. Many others, veterans and civilians, followed the motorcycles in cars in the procession to show their respect and to honor Holton for his service.

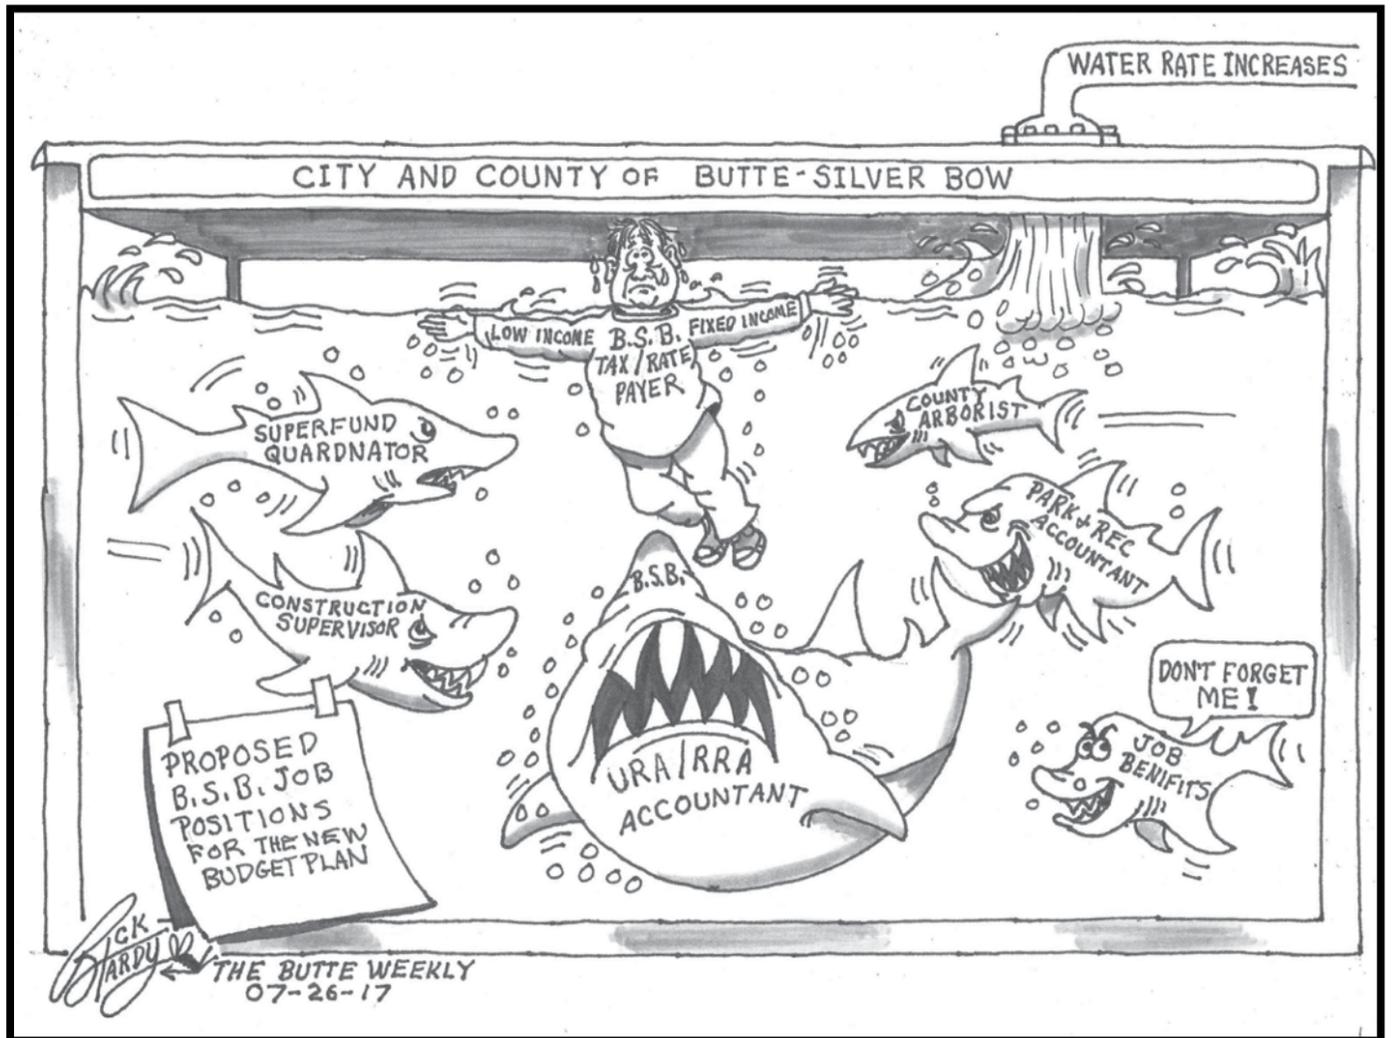

The emotion was palpable at the airport gathering. More than 100 motorcycles were parked in neat rows, gleaming in the sunshine. Their riders and others gathered in groups to visit and to go over instructions for the memorial procession. They prayed before a group took up flags and took their positions at the gate where the white hearse, bearing Holton's coffin, passed through.

Then, the motorcyclists mounted their bikes and a roar rose from the parking lot as they took off to follow the hearse on its journey to Butte. It was an awesome sight as they passed in a long line from the airport and off to the highway.

As the procession made its way to Butte, it was greeted at bridge after bridge lined with those who came to pay their respects, waving flags and banners. A small group was gathered at Homestake, still more at the bridges at the Continental Drive exit in Butte and a huge group was on hand at the Harrison Avenue exit, where the procession went north toward the funeral home. Members of the Butte High School History Club lined the exit and waved flags. There was a huge "Welcome Home" banner at the corner and a huge flag waved from Butte's ladder truck.

The most emotional moment for many participants was seeing the hundreds of people who lined Harrison Avenue to greet the procession and to honor Holton and his family for his service. They stood along the sidewalk and in the medians, many waving flags, to show their respect and love for one of their own, a man who gave his life for his country.

It was heartening to see the Butte community united in loyalty to show their respect for a fallen hero. Those who rode and drove in the procession and those who waited on the bridges and along the street helped to fulfill a promise. At long last, they were able to welcome Captain Holton home.

Where an "America Firster" Feels at Home

By George Waring

Before attending the G-20 in Hamburg, Poland's neofascist government invited Trump to experience real comradeship in Warsaw.

Last year, Truthdig's Chris Hedges described Poland's Law and Justice Party's rapid roll back of constitutional rights, its use of state media to silence democratic opponents, its purge of the public broadcasting system, its censorship of President Obama's criticism of the new government's assault on an independent judiciary, twisting his words into totally false praise "for Polish democracy." "Law and Justice" was destroying opposition newspapers and magazines, using its control to force state institutions to cancel subscriptions to any but approved titles.

In discussions with silenced pro-democracy leaders, Hedges was told of a parliament without debates, of the end of constitutional checks and balances, of a Constitutional Court stripped of its power to review new law. According to Hedges, one man, Jaroslaw Kaczynski, the "reclusive and morbid" founder and head of the "Law and Justice" Party, was governing Poland "like a private fiefdom" Both the Prime Minister and the President "were political puppets." In fact, Kaczynski was "referred to with fear or reverence as 'the Chairman.' His words, and his obsessions, becoming law."

Last July, Hedges judged that the majority of eastern European Union nations were "devolving into proto-fascism." Democracy was dead under Hungary's Prime Minister, Viktor Orban. Neofascist groups, described as "rabidly xenophobic, racist, Islamophobic and homophobic," were "demonizing immigrants and branding internal dissent as treason." Once voted into power, wrote Hedges, these neofascists "relied on ruthless internal security and surveillance systems — Poland had established 11 intelligence agencies—to crush dissent. They seek their identity in a terrifying new nationalism, often, as in Poland, coupled with a right-wing Catholicism. They preach hatred of the outsider and glorification of obedient and 'true' patriots."

On July 7th, The Atlantic's David Frum began his reflection on Trump's Warsaw speech by calling it "a fair sort of presidential speech, if you forgot who was speaking and what that person had been saying and doing since Inauguration Day—since the opening of his campaign in 2015—and really throughout his career." Frum noted that Trump's statement, "We treasure the rule of law and protect the right to free speech and free expression," could only be true if the "we" did not include the speaker.

"Rule of law?" Frum reported that shortly before his trip to Europe, Trump had been discussing with his advisers how to use a current Justice Department antitrust review of a pending corporate merger. How could this review of the CNN merger with AT&T be used to get rid of those pesky CNN news folks talking about Russia's influence in the 2016 election? Frum noted that Trump's consideration of using an anti-trust review "as leverage against the news network, if realized, would be a perversion of anti-trust law."

During his speech, Trump compared the 1944 Warsaw Rising against the Nazis with what he was leading, "our own fight for the West." Frum wrote, "If Trump's foreign policy has had one theme, it has precisely been to smash the unity of the Western alliance;" in fact, his speech in Warsaw "amounted to one more such blow against unity."

For Frum, Trump's Warsaw visit was designed "to praise and reward a Polish government that all America's other leading allies in Europe have been reproofing for its suppression of free media and politicization of its legal system. Trump's speech in praise of the unity of the West predictably and perversely ended up being an attack on the unity of the West."

Jack Jenkins, senior religion reporter at ThinkProgress, saw in Trump's Warsaw speech proof that alt-right Steve Bannon had again become the President's chief adviser. He recognized in Trump's core message the themes used by Bannon in a speech he had given to a 2014 Vatican conference organized by the Institute for Human Dignity.

Bannon had "argued passionately that the 'Judeo-Christian West' was in 'crisis' because it is beset by at least three forces: 'unenlightened' forms of capitalism, 'jihadi Islamic fascism,' and creeping secularism." Bannon spoke of "a crisis of our church, a crisis of our faith, a crisis of the West, a crisis of capitalism."

Jenkins saw Bannon's influence in Trump's criticisms of the Western European members of NATO, in his description of "the West" being under siege from several threats, and in demanding that Europe strengthen itself spiritually in defense of Christianity.

Jenkins concluded that Trump's "theo-nationalistic" Warsaw speech sounded "a whole lot like alt-right Steve Bannon."

Alumni Coliseum legend was a bit off sides

Bill Foley

in the Copper Bowl in 1969 at Alumni Coliseum in Butte.

At least 45,000 people have claimed to have personally attended the game – some who weren't even born yet – in a stadium that doesn't have enough seats to hold 5,000 people.

About the same number of people have claimed they attended the game two years later when Don Heater ran for nearly 300 yards on the same field, and at least 100,000 say they were there when Cecil Fielder bounced a ball off the Our Lady of the Rockies statue in 1982, about three and a half years before the statue was erected on the East Ridge.

The length of the Fielder home run has become something of an urban legend.

Another urban legend witnessed by a crowd in the tens of thousands at Alumni Coliseum was the game when Montana Tech lineman Matt Vincent jumped off sides five or six times – when Carroll had the ball about an inch from the Oredigger goal line – forcing the officials to award the Saints a touchdown.

Even the non-exaggerating folks in the crowd that night will swear that our future former chief executive jumped off sides at least three times.

I wasn't born when Alzado and Heater had their big moments at Alumni Coliseum. I saw Fielder hit a few home runs in 1982, but I'm not sure if I was there that night when he hit the ball to Delmoe Lake.

But I was in attendance (honestly) the night of the Matt Vincent Game, and I always swore that he jumped off sides at least four times, knocking the poor Carroll College tackle (or maybe tight end) back about 5 yards each time.

Vincent always contended that he only jumped three times, yet smiled sheepishly as I added an additional off sides each time I relayed the story in his presence.

So, nearly a quarter of a century later, I decided to head to the library and read the newspaper account of the game. I knew Bruce Saylor, a trustworthy scribe to say the least, covered the game for the paper, so I knew I would get an accurate answer.

So today I am here to put an urban legend to rest.

Against Carroll College that night, Vincent jumped off sides ... drum roll please ... twice.

You're not going to believe me. Coaches, players, fans and even officials will tell you it was more. Much more. Even Vincent was surprised to learn he only jumped twice.

Bruce Saylor, though, does not lie when he reports on a game.

It was just so obvious what Vincent was doing in that situation. Was it pure genius or poor sportsmanship? Or, was it a combination of both?

I say both. If the Carroll lineman jumps, the ball is moved back 5 yards. If he doesn't, the ball is moved an almost immeasurable distance forward. But you're not going to win any sportsmanship medals by taking a shot at defenseless linemen.

The reaction by both sides and the magnitude of the game and rivalry made it seem like more. Much more.

The Tech-Carroll rivalry was particularly crazy on the night of Saturday, Oct. 9, 1993 when Bob Petrino's Saints brought a 5-0 record to town to take on Bob Green's 4-0 Orediggers in a game between the last two unbeaten NAIA Division I teams in the nation.

It was my first Tech-Carroll game, and almost every seat in the stadium – about 3,500 – was taken on the pleasant October evening.

Tech led 20-7 early in the third quarter before Carroll mounted a comeback.

Carroll's J.J. Lamb scored on a 43-yard run to cut the lead to 20-14 with 10 minutes, 59 seconds left in the third quarter. Then Benji Robinson busted in for a 1-yard run to give the Saints a 21-20 lead with 7:24 left in the frame.

Late in the third, Carroll threatened again, and Lamb broke a 6-yard run to inside the Tech 1. From my view from the nose-bleed seats looking down the north goal line, it looked like the ball was an inch, maybe two, away from the end zone on the north end of the field.

As soon as the Saints lined up for the next play, Vincent jumped off sides, blasting the Carroll lineman. You could almost literally see the lightbulb turn on above his head as the referee moved the ball the microscopic half the distance to the goal.

Bam! Vincent jumped off sides again, and the lineman flew backward. Again.

Carroll fans were outraged, while Tech fans laughed as they cheered.

Then the referee put his arms in the air, and Vincent became the first and only Tech player to score a touchdown for the Saints.

Tech fans were outraged, while Carroll fans laughed as they cheered.

Green, who felt another Carroll touchdown came with 12 men on the field, said he wouldn't discuss the officiating with the media after the game, but everybody in western Montana knew the coach's position.

I could clearly hear every Green word from my seat at the top of the stadium.

"That," Green yelled, "is not a rule. That is not a rule. That. Is. Not. A. Rule."

The disputed touchdown put the Ore-diggers in a 28-20 hole.

Tech tied the game when Dave Glover hauled in his second touchdown pass of the game from Kent Graham, this time for 5 yards with 16 seconds left in the third quarter. Greg Barnes caught a pass for the 2-point conversion.

Carroll, though, took the lead for good with a 9-yard Robinson run early in the fourth. The Saints clinched a victory when Robinson hit Scott Leads for a 43-yard score with 3:39 left.

Many Tech fans funneled out of the stadium as Carroll players and fans mockingly asked, "Where you going, Butte?"

That was my introduction to Tech-Carroll, a rivalry that takes a back seat to none.

Since that night, there have been many heated games, many arguments and another possible urban legend – like Nick Milodragovich allegedly signaling for a fair catch before returning a punt to set up Carroll's game-winning touchdown – have taken place between the Saints and Orediggers at Alumni Coliseum.

One thing is for sure, though, when the Orediggers and Saints open the 2017 season on the Bob Green Field on Thursday night, Aug. 31, you will not see a Tech defensive lineman score a touchdown for Carroll.

There is no way that will ever happen again.

So it's a good thing those tens of thousands of fans were there to witness it firsthand.

– Bill Foley is the editor of ButteSports.com, where you will also find Bruce Saylor, Pat Ryan and up-to-the-minute coverage on the Orediggers, Bulldogs, Maroons and much more.

Match Short- and Long-Term Goals With the Right Investments

Not all investments are created equal. Some are better suited for short-term goals, while others can help you build resources for objectives far in the future. As an investor, then, one of your biggest challenges will be to match your short- and long-term goals with the appropriate investment vehicles. How should you proceed?

For starters, identify your short- and long-term goals. Your shorter-term goals will change throughout your life. When you are starting out in your career, for example, you might aspire to purchase a home in the next three to five years. Later on, though, your biggest short-term objective might be to save enough money for a long tour of Europe – without racking up credit card debt.

As for long-term goals, your biggest one likely will be to enjoy a comfortable retirement. But you may well have other long-term plans, too, such as sending your kids to college in 10 or 15 years.

After you have a clear sense of your short- and long-term goals, you can choose the right investments to help you meet them. Let's start with the shorter-term ones. When you're saving for a down payment on a home or for an expensive European vacation, you want to make sure that a certain amount of money will be available to you at a certain time. Consequently, you may want to avoid stocks or stock-based vehicles, which will constantly fluctuate in price, because you don't want the value of your investment to be down at the moment you need the money. Instead, for short-term goals, you may want to consider a fixed-income vehicle, such as a bond, which is designed to provide regular interest payments and return your full principal upon the bond's maturity (providing the issuer doesn't default, which, with investment-grade bonds, is generally unlikely).

For longer-term goals, such as college for your kids and a comfortable retirement for yourself, it's a different story. To achieve these goals – and especially for retirement – you generally need to accumulate as much as you can. As a result, you need investments with growth potential, which means you will need to consider stocks and stock-based instruments. As mentioned above, stocks will always fluctuate in value, and they may be worth more or less than your original investment when sold. However, building a portfolio with an investment mix that's appropriate for your risk tolerance, and that contains a reasonable amount of growth-oriented vehicles, can potentially help you overcome short-term volatility and continue making progress toward your long-term goals.

Plus, you have some attractive long-term options available. With a 529 college savings plan, you can save for college and possibly achieve tax benefits, too. And by contributing regularly to your IRA and 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored plan, you can defer taxes while spreading your dollars among a wide range of investments. But there's one thing all long-term investments have in common: You need patience and discipline to stick with them.

So, there you have some ideas on short- and long-term investing. Keeping this distinction in mind when you invest can help boost your confidence that you're making appropriate moves for all your goals.

Weight Loss - Learn from Experience

We often work very hard at learning or accomplishing something, only to find out that there were already resources available that we could utilize to make the process shorter and easier. There is a website called The National Weight Control Registration, established in 1994, that has been tracking more than ten thousand individuals, all over 18 years old, who have lost at least thirty pounds and kept it off. That register offers us an amazing amount of cumulative knowledge that we can use to assist our own efforts. In this column, we will look at the lessons learned that relate to eating.

First of all, these successful folks eat breakfast. I know we have talked about this before, but this advice comes from experienced losers – of weight that is! By consistently eating breakfast (ideally within one hour of waking up) we get our metabolisms fired up first thing in the morning. We have the opportunity to add some fiber with whole grain cereals, fruits, and even vegetables stirred into eggs.

We are less likely to go bananas sometime later in the day when our deprived bodies are starving for food and reason has gone out the window. Breakfast also produces better control of our blood sugars, which is important and can be critical for those with pre-diabetes. National reports released this week now estimate that one out of every three Americans is pre-diabetic. Diabetes is one of the most important diseases to avoid. Our bodies are begging for food after that long overnight fast and good sense and good health dictate feeding them. If you are generally not hungry when you get up, think of the one thing you could eat and start there. We do adjust to eating first thing in the morning if we start gradually and are consistent.

Eat a low-calorie, low-fat diet. Easier said than done I realize, but it can be accomplished. Most of us eat similar meals throughout the week so making adjustments here and there to reduce calories and fat can make a big difference. One of the easiest ways to accomplish that is to substitute fruits and vegetables (and stick to those you are fond of) for some of the simple carbohydrates and more fattening foods. Or switch foods that are processed or made entirely of white flour to a smaller portion of one made with whole grains. Whole grains fill you up with less and are usually more satisfying.

Eat a consistent diet day-to-day. By taking the steps outlined in the previous paragraph, you will find that your careful planning prevents splurges and fosters self-discipline. Those who shared their success eat an average of four to five times per day. Our bodies respond better to smaller, more frequent meals than to a few large meals per day. We have more energy with small meals as eating large meals can result in low energy and lethargy.

Not everyone needs or wants to lose weight. And healthy changes to our diets don't necessarily result in weight loss. All bodies are not created equal. When I am doing my best to make smart choices and I don't experience any weight loss, I am comforted by the knowledge that these choices are still contributing to better health. That is reason enough to put this experience-gained knowledge into practice. Good luck and enjoy this great summer weather!

Carousel Corner

By Larry Hoffman

In the hot weather we've been having, the inside of our Carousel building is still shedding a lot of cool, accumulated during the long cold winter and spring. A pretty nice place to work on a hot summer day. Hint, hint!

Ron Kissock and Ed Cummings got us switched over to the permanent electrical service last week and we are now using some of the wall outlets for power instead of the octopus extension cord mass off a couple of temporary plugs. Thanks, Bob, Tom, Ted and Todd Steiger! We also have many of the outside wall lights.

work before the pole assembly can go together. Nothing serious, just another in a long list of relatively small but time-consuming jobs to be done.

Scott and Sonya Rosenthal took time from their busy schedule to help and keep things coordinated with all the volunteers Saturday.

Our president, Jim Ayres, has been working on the concession area. He's our expert in that area, with a lot of Paul Bunyan's Sandwich Shop experience to draw on. We are scheduled for pretty much completing the sheet rock on the walls and ceilings this week, with concurrent plastering and taping. There is a LOT of interior surface to finish. I don't know how long it will take, but it will be one of the major milestones, opening up lots of relatively simple volunteer tasks, like painting, trim, and other detail work.

Contributions may be made by PayPal from our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/pages/Spirit-of-Columbia-Gardens-Carousel, or the website, <http://www.buttecarousel.com/>, by mail to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703, or in person at the Mall shop. We are a 501(c) 3 non-profit that also may qualify for employer matching donations.

If you have any comments or suggestions, or would like to volunteer to help, please let us know! Call the office at 494-7775, or stop by the site. We are not there all the time, but as much as we can!

The family of John Murphy, one of the original horse carvers, had a family reunion last weekend and 15 of the family spent Saturday morning working on our Carousel. Trim and doors got painted, sheetrock got hung, window arches were prepped for plaster, mechanism parts got de-rusted, naggging little details got worked on, and the place cleaned up a little. John, himself being almost 93 years old, stopped by to inspect the progress.

Randy Clayton has returned to his hometown after some 37 years in Seattle, bringing with him a lot of construction experience and a willingness to help us out until he gets a real job. He's a good hand, they're hard to find these days, if anyone is looking.

We hoped to at least get the center pole of the mechanism stood, but the main bearing assembly needs some

"An injury to one is an injury to all! So all together, you diggers and muckers, force the bosses off your back! Put them down to work in the hole with the producers....make them earn a living for a change!"
 - Frank Little, legendary IWW organizer, Martyr of the working class

Wednesday, July 26:

30 workers were murdered by federal troops, who were sent to protect the profits of the rich, at the "Battle of the Viaduct", Chicago, during the Great Upheaval (AKA Great Strike). U.S. troops and police attacked 5,000 unarmed workers at Halsted and 16th Street in Chicago. A judge later found the police guilty of preventing the workers from exercising their Constitutional right to freedom of speech and assembly. -1877

Battle of Mucklow, West Virginia, during a coal miners strike an estimated 100,000 shots were fired; 12 striking miners were murdered in order to keep wages low, and protect the mine owner's profits. -1912

Thursday, July 27:

Legendary labor leader William Sylvis died. Head of the National Labor Union, the first such organization in US history. In 1868 Sylvis said "Capital blights and withers all it touches. It is a new aristocracy - proud, imperious, dishonest, seeking only profit and the exploitation of workers." -1869
 Canada: United Mine Workers organizer Ginger Goodwin was shot by a hired private cop outside Cumberland, British Columbia sparking Canada's first General Strike. -1918

Friday, July 28:

Women shoemakers in Lynn, Mass., create Daughters of St. Crispin, demand pay equal to that of men. -1869
 An IWW led strike by Paterson, N.J., silk workers for an 8-hour day and safer working conditions ends after 6 months, with the workers' demands unmet. During the course of the strike, 1,800 strikers were arrested, including IWW leaders Big Bill Haywood and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn. -1913

Saturday, July 29:

Following a 5-year table grape boycott, Delano-area growers file into the United Farm Workers Union hall in Delano, Calif., to sign their first contracts with the Union. -1970
 Both houses of Congress pass President Reagan's tax-cut legislation. The largest tax cut in the nation's history, reduced taxes by $37.6 billion in 1982, and reduce government tax income $750 billion over the next 5 years. The tax cuts increased the Federal Deficit, benefited only corporations and the ultra rich and started the decline of the middle class. 34 years later Reagan's wealth redistribution scheme brought our country to it's knees and destroyed a once strong middle class, while the top 1% increased their wealth to historic levels. -1981

Sunday, July 30:

Elvis Presley joins the Memphis Federation of Musicians, Local 71. -1954
 Former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa disappears. Declared legally dead in 1982, his body has never been found. -1975

Monday, July 31:

Butte Montana: During his early days as a Pinkerton detective an Anaconda mine company representative offered Dashiell

Hammett (as later recalled by Hammett) $5,000 to kill IWW organizer Frank Little in Butte Montana. Hammett said he quit the business that night. 6 dirty cowards will accept the offer. -1917

The Great Shipyard Strike of 1999 ends after Steelworkers at Newport News Shipbuilding ratify a breakthrough agreement which nearly doubles pensions, increases security, ends inequality, and provides the highest wage increases in company and industry history to nearly 10,000 workers at the yard. The strike lasted 15 weeks. -1999

Tuesday, Aug 1:

Butte Montana: Legendary IWW organizer, free speech activist, working class and anti-war activist murdered. After inspiring striking Butte miners against the Anaconda Company and Capitalist greed, a paid group of 6 company goons pulls IWW leader Frank Little, broken leg and all, at night from his boarding house then drags him by car over 2 miles and hangs the mutilated body from a railroad trestle. As a warning to Butte's workers, the lynchers pin the old vigilante numbers, 3-7-77 to his clothes and leaves the body to hang. Today Little's Butte grave site is visited by countless Union supporters and friends of labor, his headstone reads; "Slain By the Capital Interests for Organizing and Inspiring His Fellow Men." Little's funeral will be the largest in Butte's history. (IWW, We Never Forget.) -1917
 Sid Hatfield, police chief of Matewan, W. Va., a longtime supporter of the United Mine Workers Union, is murdered by company goons. This soon led to the Battle of Blair Mountain, a labor uprising also referred to as the Red Neck War. -1921

The Great Outdoors

A great 'lost and found' fishing story

By Paul Vang

"Boy, do I have a story for you! It's a lost and found story, and Wade Fellin is my hero—and if you don't write the story I'll find someone who will!

This was from our friend, Ron Hays, while getting out of the car when he and his wife, Nina Norum, came to have dinner with us at our campsite on the upper Big Hole River.

We met Ron and Nina something like 15 years ago at a Trout Unlimited dinner in Butte. Ron was, at one time, a Dean of engineering at Montana Tech, here in Butte. Nina is a R.N., and we made an instant connection when we learned that Nina, like my wife and I, is a graduate of St. Olaf College in Minnesota.

Their home is in Minneapolis, but for years they have maintained an apartment in Butte as a base for fishing the Big Hole River and other trout streams. This past year they moved their Montana base to Missoula to be closer to grandchildren, but we still try to get together when they return to Montana. They'd timed this trip to be able to go to the Big Hole River Day, the annual fundraising event of the Big Hole River Foundation. They've been supporting the Foundation and in appreciation were invited on a float trip with a Foundation board member as their guide, and this year their guide was Wade Fellin, the co-manager of the Big Hole Lodge at Wise River.

They were floating the Maiden Rock Canyon below Divide when Ron and Nina's flies got tangled. Wade anchored the rubber raft while assisting them in getting untangled. As Ron related, "I handed my rod, or at least thought I did, to Wade. We got untangled, then I asked, 'Wade, do you have my pole?'"

It turned out he didn't. In one of those awkward moments, the handoff didn't connect and Ron's rod was in the river.

The rod wasn't just any fly rod. It was a bamboo rod made by Glenn Brackett's Sweetgrass Rod Company, and a gift from Ron's family in honor of his 80th birthday.

Here's where's Wade Fellin's story starts. "If you're going to drop a fly rod in the river, it was a bad place because it was in a really deep stretch—around six feet deep, and there's just enough silt on the bottom to make it impossible to see anything once it gets stirred up. I tried to figure out where it went but it seemed hopeless."

The rest of the float to their takeout at Maidenrock Bridge was a sad trip. Ron relates, "I called Glenn Brackett to order a replacement, but he said it would be at least a year before he'd be able to fill the order."

After finishing the float, Wade called his fellow guides from Big Hole Lodge to come and help find the rod. He then stopped at a Melrose fly shop where the owners annually go snorkeling in the Bahamas in the winter and borrowed some snorkeling gear.

With the help of the guide crew

Wade returned to the river and the stretch where the rod went overboard, trying to figure out how far the rod might have drifted with the current. "Mark Thompson called over, 'I think you're too far to the left!' I thought, 'How would you know. You weren't there.' Still, I moved over to the right side of the channel, and darned if I didn't spot it. The reel had wedged in between rocks, about 200 yards from where it fell in, with the rod pointing downstream."

There was a happy reunion of rod and Ron at an afternoon social event of donors and Foundation board members, and Ron and Nina were still almost giddy at the rod's recovery that evening.

As for any heroics in the recovery, Wade shrugs it off, "We give the float trip to our supporters to thank them for their contributions to the Foundation, but we don't expect them to donate their precious bamboo rods to the river."

Paul Vang's book, "Sweeter than Candy, A Hunter's Journal" is available at Books & Books, Cavanaugh's County Celtic, The Bookstore in Dillon, or online at <http://writingoutdoors.com>.
