Commissioners approve $1 million contract for Stodden Park playground

By Robin Jordan

Butte-Silver Bow commissioners last week approved a nearly $1 million contract to build a "destination playground" at Stodden Park with many mining-themed features that will offer plenty of play and exercise fun for kids of all ages.

The contract with Northwest Playground Equipment Inc. of Issaquah, WA includes nearly $702,000 in playground equipment, materials and surfacing as well as $298,000 in labor. Funding for the playground will come from the $5.5 million donated to Butte-Silver Bow from the Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation and Montana Resources for major upgrades and improvements at Stodden Park.

The playground will include two areas, one for children aged 2-5 and one for those 5 and older. Mining-themed equipment will include three 20-foot-tall headframes with platforms, climbing features and slides and a 14-foot mining truck with a huge platform bed with slides coming down from the sides and back. There will also be a 12-foot-tall "Big M" with a variety of difficulty levels for climbing.

Other features include a "Pentaweb" that looks like a giant spider web and a "Branch-Out," a hub of climbing features like nets, ropes and flex-treads. The playground will also have two zip-lines, several swings and a variety of other features for creative play.

Rubberized surfaces that surround and connect the major play features will provide easy access for wheelchairs and walkers.

Plans also call for two exercise stations with equipment for adults and older teens of all abilities for working out while the younger kids play.

When the Dennis and Phyllis Washington Foundation and Montana Resources donated $2.5 million to Butte-Silver Bow for improvements to Stodden Park in September 2016, the city-county planned to spend $300,000 for a new playground. Last year, the grant was increased to $5.5 million for improvements including the playground, new tennis courts, a midway courtyard and expansion and redesign of the parking lots. In October of last year, plans were approved for an expanded playground estimated to cost $900,000.

The playground is scheduled to be completed by November 30 of this year.

The new Ridge Waters Waterpark, which features a zero-depth entry pool, lap pool and lazy river, along with a new bathhouse facility with changing rooms, lockers and a concession area, is scheduled to open at Stodden Park on Memorial Day. The nearby Spirit of Butte Carousel is also expected to open this spring.

Other scheduled improvements to the park this summer will include the addition of a second entrance from Rowe Road and a new archway at the entrance just off Dewey Boulevard. Construction of the tennis courts and the midway courtyard with a pavilion and additional landscaping improvements will be taking place this summer as well.

The five rules of Little League Baseball are have fun, have fun, have fun, have fun and get a treat.

All of my coaches understood that, but nobody did more so than my dad. He was my coach the season I turned 10 years old.

One game late in the season, I saw him tell one of the league big shots to take a hike when he suggested my dad put one of the younger players back on the bench before he got his mandatory two innings in because "this is a big game."

My dad didn't care. That boy was going to get his playing time.

I believe that boy went on to play American Legion baseball, and that was at least partly because he was not told by his Little League coach that he was not good enough.

I only got to play for my dad one

BUTTE SPORTS

For 50 years, nobody has done it better than Parent

year because he had to work out of town the next two seasons.

Mike Venner and Ed Martin were my coaches the next two years, and they were great. Every game and every practice was a blast.

The one coach I always wanted to play for, though, was Mike Parent.

Coach Mike coached the Elks. He coached with Ed "Crunch" Crnich for many years before taking over the team by himself.

Over that time, the Elks became the Elks/Photo Stars and then just Photo Stars. Besides coaching the team, Coach Mike, a photographer, is also its sponsor.

This season will mark the 50th season the Coach Mike is coaching the same team in the same league, the Northwest Little League of Butte.

Since the spring of 1969, Coach Mike has been a fixture of the league.

Doing anything for 50 years is incredible. Doing it the way Coach Mike has, is simply off the charts.

In my book, Coach Mike is hands down the greatest Little League coach of all time.

He can make a bad team good and a good team great. He could turn Scotty Smalls into an All-Star.

Coach Mike knows all the players in the league. He starts scouting them when they are playing in the 7-8 league, and he keeps track of them all the way up until the day he drafts them for the 11-12 league.

When I played, every kid in the league was jealous of the kids on the Elks. My last two years, my team was like the Bad News Bears. We were a collection of misfits. We knew it, and we loved it.

Coach Mike's team was like the big leagues. Each player had an Elks coat to wear to school. They were like the players on bikes in the movie "The Sandlot," except they were not a bunch of spoiled brats.

The Elks were often full of the kind of kids whose parents did not even go to the games.

You can't even begin to guess how many mitts Coach Mike must have bought for kids over the years. You can't even begin to guess how many of those Elks jackets he paid for, either.

Whether it was basketball season, when he coached at Kennedy Elementary, or baseball season, Coach Mike always looked out for the underprivileged kid.

He still does that. You will see Coach Mike at almost every Butte High, Butte Central or Montana Tech game, and quite often he brings along a couple of boys whose parents would never even consider taking them to the game.

You can't even begin to guess how many troubled kids Coach Mike set on the right path to a happy and successful life.

On and off the field during the season, they also looked like ball players.

Back then, Coach Mike was the only coach to use signals to tell base runners to steal.

Sure, it didn't take a New England Patriot spy to crack the code. He'd usually yell to the player to get his attention and then rub his chest or forearm. But having signals was pretty cool.

The players on the Elks always seemed to have fun, and that was not just because they were always winning. They enjoyed the games and they enjoyed the practices. They seemed to thoroughly enjoy being a part of Coach Mike's team.

At recess, they reveled in wearing their awesome Elks jackets.

Coach Mike always kept Little League in perspective while building great teams, too.

The most impressive thing about Coach Mike is he has done that all these years without the ability to hear. He reads lips.

There were times when I have coached that I figured Coach Mike had an advantage because of that. He can't hear the dugout fights, and he can't hear the dads yelling at the players.

I figured that also helped him ignore the league big shots who might tell him that winning is more important than having fun.

However, I also wondered if Coach Mike might miss out on those great little moments of Little League that come because you get to know all the kids so well.

Apparently, I was wrong. Not only does Coach Mike know his players, he knows all the players in the league. He seems to know every player who ever played in the league during his 50 years.

In June of 2010, I wrote a story about Coach Mike for the daily newspaper. The interview was done by email, a great invention that really helped me get to know the man I have admired since I was a young boy.

I asked him why he coaches. Here is how he answered:

"Seeing their eyes light up when they try something you have taught or told them and it works. Getting to know everyone who likes baseball and basketball – even when they aren't on your team.

"I'd say my main goal in coaching is to make the players feel proud to have been on my teams and to turn them on to baseball and basketball."

It is safe to say that Coach Mike has mastered that for the past 50 years.

This year will be my last as the manager of a Little League baseball team, at least for a while.

I coached a 7-8 team for two seasons, and this is my second year in the 9-10. My son is 10, and next year he'll graduate to the 11-12 league.

Since other coaches in the league were told I wasn't coming back this year because I didn't win enough – or at all – last year, it is probably safe to assume it would have been my last anyway.

Next year, I can only hope that my son gets to have the opportunity that I never had. I hope he will play for Coach Mike's Photo Stars.

If so, I will offer to be an assistant, and hopefully he will accept that offer to allow me to fulfill a longtime goal of being part of Coach Mike's team.

He could teach me so much, and I just know I will look great in one of those Elks jackets.

Boat carrying zebra mussels stopped at Anaconda inspection station

The Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks Anaconda watercraft inspection station intercepted a boat carrying zebra mussels Friday. The cabin cruiser was being transported from Ohio to Puget Sound in Washington.

The inspection station reported that many mussels were found in the boat's gimbal area, the trim tabs and several crevices.

The boat was wrapped in shrink wrap, and inspectors hot-washed the exterior of the boat to the best of their ability. The inspectors were not able to flush the motors, bilge pump or any other part of the boat. The transporter of the boat was not the owner of the boat, and he did not have keys to the boat.

Officials in Idaho and Washington were notified. The Washington Department of Fish & Wildlife will follow up with the vessel to wash and possibly quarantine it.

FWP reminds all those transporting motorized or nonmotorized boats into Montana to have their watercraft inspected before launching.

Boat owners are required to stop at all open watercraft inspection stations. To find a watercraft inspection station visit www.cleandraindrymt.com.

Herbergers closing a blow for Butte

By Robin Jordan

We were disappointed last week to hear the news that Butte's Herbergers store in the Butte Plaza Mall going to close due to the bankruptcy of its parent company, Bon Ton Stores, Inc.

Bon Ton is selling off 250 stores nationwide, including Montana's six Herbergers stores in Butte, Great Falls, Billings, Havre, Kalispell and Missoula. The stores are already holding liquidation sales and are slated for closure in the next 10-12 weeks, according to Bon Ton.

Losing the Herbergers store is especially tough news for Butte. The Butte Plaza Mall has suffered the loss of several major retail outlets in recent years. In 2014, J.C. Penney closed their large Butte store there and 2017 saw the loss of Claires, Rue21 and Vanity stores.

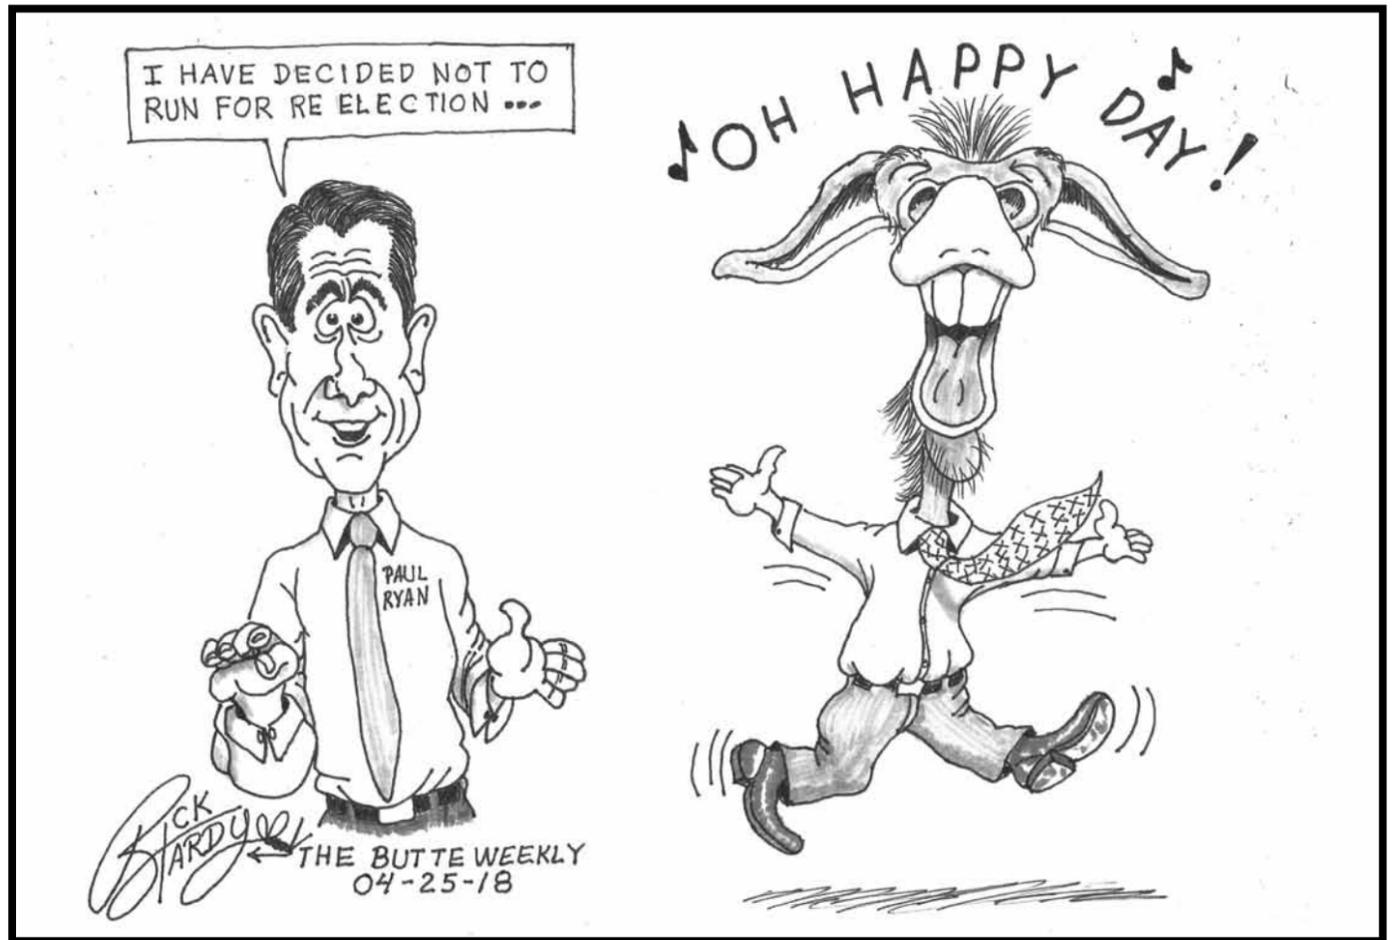

These closures aren't unique to Butte. Major retailers nationwide have been selling off their brick-and-mortar locations due to declining sales as customers turn increasingly to online shopping.

For a city like Butte, these closures are especially tough. These stores provided good jobs for our friends and neighbors and these jobs are hard to replace. Losing a department store like Herbergers leaves a big hole in our retail market as well. Shoppers are left with a very few choices in local places to go for the clothing and houseware items the store provided. Unfortunately, this will drive even more shoppers to go out of town or do their buying online.

It's going to be especially hard on a lot of older residents, many of whom have limited ability to go out of town to shop and who are unable or unwilling to shop online.

Many of us—especially the women we've talked to—will really miss shopping for clothing at Herbergers. We've bought some clothing online and most of us have horror stories about trying to find good clothing that fits without going to a store and trying it on. Sizes don't just vary from manufacturer to manufacturer, but they can vary from style to style, even if one orders from a reliable source. With some websites, it's difficult to judge the quality and workmanship of a garment from the online description and pictures. And, if we get merchandise that doesn't fit or doesn't live up to our expectations, we have to pack it up and ship it back—more hassle.

We're definitely going to have to change our habit of last minute shopping for gifts. We used to rely on being able to pop down to Herbergers to find a few items right before a holiday, birthday or other major occasion. Now, we'll have to change our ways and become one of those who starts shopping early for gifts and tucking them away for those special occasions. We just hope we'll remember where we put them when those occasions arrive.

Implementing the Mnuchin Reforms

By George Waring

Last June, Pam Martens at wallstreetonparade.com reported Trump's Secretary of the Treasury had just released his recommendations for financial reform under Donald J. Trump. These were prefaced with their stated intent of "empowering Americans to make independent financial decisions." Yes, Americans would be making their financial decisions "independently" --- because the federal agency charged with protecting financial consumers from being swindled would be rendered incapable of performing its duties.

Martens wrote that Secretary Mnuchin's recommendations "would effectively place a bigger blindfold on consumers, blocking further their ability to differentiate between serially corrupt financial institutions on Wall Street and those that make an effort at playing by the rules."

Mnuchin targeted the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB), mentioning it 315 times in 147 pages. Restrictions would be placed on its authority and regulatory power, because "they had led to predictable regulatory abuses and excesses." The actions of the CFPB "hindered consumer access to credit, limited innovation, and imposed unduly high compliance burdens" on the financial industry.

Mnuchin proposed that the CFPB's Director be removed "at will by the President," and that the agency's funding, which came from The Federal Reserve, be determined by the Republican controlled Congress.

Martens writes that Mnuchin was fulfilling promises made to Wall Street by candidate Trump. That's right, Trump the Populist candidate.

Importantly, Mnuchin demanded the Bureau no longer allow public viewing of its "Consumer Complaint Database." Last year, Martens advised her readers to "browse through the database, especially the complaint archive." She had searched for Citibank and found 29,000 rows of complaints. Under Chase, part of the mega Wall Street bank, JPMorgan Chase, she found 37,000 rows of complaints.

How embarrassing to Wall Street's financial elite. A government agency actually publicizing consumer complaints against the pillars of American finance. Shades of the New Deal!

Mnuchin's destructive "reforms" are now being implemented by its newly appointed Director Mick Mulvaney. Yes, Trump's director of the Consumer Finance Protection Bureau also serves as Trump's Budget Director. A double-fisted protector of our financial oligarchy.

Here's two big Mnuchin reforms, now implemented by Mulvaney: (1) The Bureau's complaint database is no longer available for public browsing. (2) The Bureau's use of the federal court system to punish state level criminal financial behavior is being terminated.

According to Propublica's Jesse Eisinger, a Mulvaney edict has even stopped the Bureau's enforcement lawyers from doing their research. "The attorneys weren't permitted to upload information the Wells Fargo bank supplied the Bureau about its auto insurance business. They were researching an area in which Wells Fargo has been accused of malfeasance."

And the Bureau's work, writes Eisinger, involving Wells Fargo's fraudulent treatment of its checking customers "has bogged down." In February ProPublica learned that the bureau's investigation of Wells Fargo "for mortgage abuses, years of work just about to yield tens of millions of dollars in fines, was halted." Bureau staffers told researchers that they feared "they will be ordered to reduce the penalty of Wells Fargo that Richard Cordray, the previous head of the agency, approved before he left."

So, what happened to that law suit mentioned last week, the one involving Montana pay day loan victims as well as citizens of another sixteen states?

In early February, The Kansas City Star reported that the CFPB had dismissed its 2017 suit against Golden Valley and three other pay day lenders. Initially, the Bureau, "had alleged that the four companies charged interest rates of 440 percent to 950 percent, beyond what several states allow for consumer loans."

In its report, NPR interviewed one of the people who had been ready to testify, 27-year-old Julie Bonenfant, a Michigan resident. She said she took out a $900 loan from Golden Valley. "In less than 12 months, her scheduled payments will total $3,735," said the NPR reporter.

The Kansas City newspaper mentioned that "the business model used by the four companies in the Bureau's suit mirrors what's referred to as the 'rent-a-tribe' structure, where a payday lender nominally establishes its business on American Indian reservations, where state regulations generally do not apply."

The Bureau had alleged that the four lending companies, "violated usury laws in seventeen states and thereby engaged in unfair, deceptive and abusive practices under federal law."

The four lenders were owned by the Habematolel Pomo tribe of California. They were exempt from California's usury law.

P.S. Miss Bonenfant said she voted for Trump.

Samm Cox files for District Court Judge

For 23 years, week in week out, day in day out, Samm Cox has been representing the people of Butte-Silver Bow inside the courtroom as Deputy County Attorney and Chief Deputy County Attorney. He has handled over 1500 felony cases; is the attorney of record in over 16,000 misdemeanor cases; has had over 35 cases before the Montana Supreme Court and two cases before the United States Supreme Court. He has conducted over 80 jury trials throughout the years and if you have been selected for jury duty in Butte, it is likely you have seen Samm in action.

Samm reports that with each case, every victim, every defendant, and every juror, he has grown to appreciate the need for a fair and neutral court system. He understands that each case not only has impact on the parties involved but the community as a whole. He knows neutrality, hard work, and an understanding of humanity are key.

To ensure complete neutrality, Samm has decided to fund his campaign on his own. He has had no fundraisers and is not soliciting or accepting donations. He recognizes that this big-hearted town is small and if elected, there would be a good chance that those who contribute may be affected by some of the decisions that he will have to make. As such to avoid potential conflicts, he has decided to run for this office only with the limited resources he can invest into it. He has been quoted as saying that he is considering this a job application and not a political race.

Therefore, Samm is trying to get as much information as he can to the voters through meeting folks and through his website created with the help of his son, Shane: www.sammcox4judge.com. At this site, anyone interested can view a copy of Samm's resume which shows his employment from high school to his various jobs working his way through undergraduate and law school. The site also provides links to many of the cases and related news articles he has handled, including those brought before the Supreme Court. It is his stated purpose that he wants the voters to make an informed decision about who has the most relevant experience for the District Court Judge position.

Samm reports that he and his wife, Tammy (Stenson), feel so lucky and blessed to have been able to come home and practice in their relative fields of study. They are raising three sons and are involved in their activities. If you don't see Samm at a community event during this election season, it is because it is also baseball season. He is currently coaching a Little League team as well as a Travel Team, and is watching his middle son participate in American Legion. Samm has been coaching youth sports since he was 19 years old, including baseball, Little Guy football, and school basketball. He has also enjoyed serving on several community boards, being a Cub Scout pack leader, fishing, hunting, camping, and family time.

When asked why he believes that he would be right for the position, he states, "My dream job out of law school was to work as a prosecutor because it was the position that allowed me to be in the courtroom. Through it all, I have learned that the justice system isn't just about words written on the pages of law books. Justice is about fairness for all people from every walk of life. My previous experience of being involved in tough cases and making hard decisions has prepared me for this position. I am applying for the position of District Court Judge because it aligns with my core values, my beliefs, and my qualifications."

Strategies for Your Investment "Garden"

If you're a gardener, your busy season is at hand, as April has been designated National Garden Month. But could the skills you deploy at gardening be transferred to other areas of your life – such as investing?

Here are a few ideas for doing just that:

Establish a timeline. As a gardener, you typically follow a well-defined timeline. You need to get the soil ready a few months before you want to plant, and you need to plant at different times, depending on what plants you choose. You even need to set up a schedule for watering, feeding, weeding and other garden care. As an investor, you may also need to observe a timeline. During the early and middle stages of your career, you probably need to invest primarily for growth, so you can build resources for a comfortable retirement. Then, as you near retirement, you may want to lower your risk level by shifting some – though certainly not all – of your investment dollars from growth-oriented vehicles into more income-producing ones. And once you do retire, your focus will shift to preserving your money, so one of your key decisions will center on how much you can afford to withdraw each year from your investment portfolio.

Choose "healthy" investments. Gardeners like to choose plants they know will really last. That's why they look for things such as green leaves, as opposed to brown or yellow ones, and thick stems, which usually indicate a plant is strong, healthy and capable of surviving a transition from the pot to the ground. And when you invest, you, too, should look for signs of health in the investments you choose. For example, when picking stocks, look for companies with solid fundamentals, such as experienced management, strong earnings and the demonstrated ability to produce products and services attractive to consumers. Or, when considering bonds, consider those that independent rating agencies have awarded the highest grades, in terms of the financial strength of the issuer.

Feed your investments properly. Things like fertilizer and plant food can be valuable, but the most important element in plant nutrition is water. Under-watered plants will not survive, but overwatering your plants can certainly damage them severely. When you invest, you also need to know the right amount of "food," or "nutrients," to apply. If you don't put enough money into investments, they may not grow as much as you'd like. On the other hand, it is possible to "overwater" certain investments. For example, if you constantly put money into just one or two investments, they could end up crowding out others in your portfolio, causing you to lose the value of diversification. And if these particular investments are already growth-oriented vehicles, highly subject to market risk, they could take a big hit during a market downturn. Ultimately, seek a balance in how you distribute your investment dollars.

Year after year, successful gardeners reap the rewards of their labors. And following some of their habits can help you work toward a long-lasting and fruitful investment garden, too.

What about Protein?

As is often the case, there are mixed recommendations about how much protein we should include in our diets, as well as what foods are the best sources of protein. Let's take a look at what information is out there and what factors affect how much protein we need.

Including enough protein in our diets is important. It is a component of every cell in our bodies. In fact, hair and nails are mostly made of protein. Your body uses protein to build and repair tissue. You need it to make enzymes, hormones, and other body chemicals. It is an important building block of bones, muscles, cartilage, skin, and blood.

Eating foods that contain complete protein (containing all amino acids) will help ensure that you do not become deficient in essential amino acids. Complete proteins include meat, poultry, fish, dairy, eggs, and soy (a non-animal source). Nuts, grains, fruits, and vegetables contain protein but are typically incomplete.

Protein recommendations vary from ten to thirty-five percent of total calorie intake, with the USDA being at the low end, nutritionists being in the middle and many exercise experts preferring the high end. When I was in school, the recommendation for active adults was one to one and a half grams of protein per kilogram of body weight per day (depending on activity level), which translates to .45 to .675 grams per pound of body weight.

Here in cattle country, it can come as a shock to realize that a 12 ounce steak is about 90 grams of protein. The USDA recommends 62 grams of protein for someone weighing 175 pounds and the formula I was taught comes to between 80 and 118 grams for the day. While it is important to consume adequate protein, excess amounts, like excess calories, are simply stored as fat.

A four-ounce portion of chicken, fish, lean beef and pork contains about 30 grams of protein, give or take a few grams. Low-fat dairy, beans, nuts, vegetables and whole grains are also good sources of protein. If you have a couple of servings of low-fat dairy products a day, you will get 13 grams of protein. Three servings of whole grains adds up a total of 15 grams of protein and a cup of dark green leafy vegetables, like broccoli, adds 4 grams for a total of 32 grams of protein.

Before consuming any of our typical protein dishes, like meat and chicken, you would have 32 grams of protein and have included a fair amount of fiber, antioxidants, and calcium in your diet. At that point, getting to your protein goal is fairly easy. Like carbohydrates and fat, protein is a "macronutrient," meaning that you need relatively large amounts of it to stay healthy. Vitamins and minerals, which you only need in small quantities, are called "micronutrients." Unlike carbohydrates and fat, your body does not store protein.

Experts agree that meeting your protein needs with whole foods is ideal. For those who struggle to eat adequate protein and wish to supplement with protein bars and shakes, it is important to look at added sugars, total calorie count and protein to carbohydrate ratio, as well as the ingredient list, when deciding what kinds of bars or shakes will be the most beneficial.

Fish, especially oily fish like salmon, is a great choice to include regularly in your diet. Choosing lean meat, like low-fat burger and sirloin steak, while watching portion sizes, can assist with healthy cholesterol levels. Occasionally having meatless meals, utilizing beans or tofu as a protein source, is another healthy alternative. Work toward meeting your protein needs but not exceeding them.

Salmon in Mustard Sauce

By Debbie Sorensen

We've been enjoying some salmon that friends had shared with us from their Alaska fishing trip last year. One of my favorite ways to prepare salmon is a recipe from a special Norwegian friend, Torborg Hoyland, formerly of Dillon. She died short of her 101st birthday. Her daughter Katherine, created a picture cookbook of some of her mother's best ever recipe. What a delight to enjoy spending time celebrating her life as we gather together to tell some great fish stories and savor the seasoning she added to our lives.

I've used cranberry sauce as a substitute in this recipe and we liked that. Recently, I decided to try some rhubarb jelly and apple vinegar in place of the lingonberry preserves and raspberry vinegar. That sauce turned out very tasty. I also like to serve this recipe with rice cooked in chicken broth.

Mustard - Roasted Salmon with Lingonberry Sauce

2 T. Dijon mustard
2 salmon fillets
2 T. chopped shallots
2 T. raspberry vinegar

2 T. butter, melted and divided
Salt & pepper to taste
2 T. Lingonberry preserves*
Salt & pepper to taste

Preheat the oven to 450°. Stir 2 T. mustard and 1 T. melted butter in a small dish. On a greased baking sheet, place the salmon skin side down. Sprinkle the salmon with salt and pepper and spread the mustard mixture over top. Bake until salmon is cooked through and the mustard begins to brown, about 10 minutes.

While the salmon is baking, heat the remaining butter in a heavy small skillet over medium heat. Add the shallots and sauté for 2 minutes. Add the lingonberry preserves and the vinegar and stir until the mixture is smooth. Bring to a simmer. Season with salt and pepper.

Spoon the sauce over the salmon and serve. Best with Parslied New Potatoes (cooked rolled in melted butter and chopped fresh parsley). This recipe is easily scaled to the number of people to be served.

*Best would be Tyttebaer (or cowberries)— but Lingonberry is a close substitute. Could also substitute Huckleberry preserves or cranberry sauce.

Southwestern Wildlands Chapter to Host "Spring into Summer" Event

The Southwestern Wildlands Chapter of the Montana Wilderness Association will host its annual "Spring into Summer" event, featuring a presentation by outdoor author Doug Lorain. "Spring into Summer" will take place on Friday, April 27, 2018, at 5518 Designs (27 N. Main Street) in historic Uptown Butte. It will start at 6:00 p.m.

"Spring into Summer" is an opportunity to learn about the Montana Wilderness Association's "2018 Discover Wild" programs, which include Wilderness Walks, volunteer trail projects, and citizen science opportunities. The event is sponsored by the Southwestern Wildlands Chapter, a regional affiliate of the Montana Wilderness Association. More information about the chapter can be found here or in its inaugural newsletter.

The event will also feature author Doug Lorain talking about his newest book, 100 Classic Hikes: Montana. The book features all-color contour maps, stunning photography, and a fresh take on what Lorain believes to be the best hikes all around the state. Admission is free, and there will be prizes raffled off. More information can be found at: <https://www.facebook.com/events/430588980710213/>.

Carousel Corner

By Larry Hoffman

Last week saw a welcome break in the weather, with clear, blue-sky days in the sixties. It lifted everyone's mood!

This will probably be the shortest Carousel Corner yet. The work continues to move forward, but slowly, as details consume the available time of our volunteers.

Probably the most exciting thing was the delivery of much of the concession area appliances from Harrington Pepsi. The stainless steel under the decorative lighting gives life to the corner that will soon be alive with people looking for treats as they enjoy the Carousel.

We have volunteer opportunities during the week and on Saturdays, but it is admittedly hit-and-miss when experienced guidance will be there. I encourage everyone interested to just stop by and see if anyone is working and ask what can be done to help. There is rough and finish carpentry work, wiring, assembly, painting, cleaning and, now that the weather is better, outside work on the building façade and roof. Please don't be discouraged if no one is there or there is no work that fits your experience. Keep trying!

We have sorted out some conflicting information on how the horses should be hung, as well as some backward steps to accommodate installation of LED lights, but it shouldn't be long before some of the ponies will be in place.

We are all tired of the floor being covered with cardboard sheets to protect it from construction traffic, especially the black marks from the tires of the scissor lifts, but we will continue to endure the mess for the sake of preserving the colorfully stained concrete for opening day.

Our latest target, for at least a soft opening, is June 4, the date Columbia Gardens opened for the first time in 1898. We have seen many hoped-for dates come and go. All we can promise is hard work by generous hands and that everyone is eager to make the dream real.

Contributions to the project may be made by PayPal from our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/pages/Spirit-of-Columbia-Gardens-Carousel, or the website, <http://www.buttecarousel.com/>, by mail to P.O. Box 782, Butte, 59703, or in person at the Mall shop. We are a 501(c) 3 non-profit that also may qualify for employer matching donations.

If you have any comments or suggestions, or would like to volunteer to help, please let us know! Call the office at 494-7775, or stop by the site. We are not there all the time, but as much as we can!

'Into the Woods Jr' to close out the OGCT 20th Anniversary Season

Come see one of the most epic tales to be told on the Orphan Girl Theatre Stage as a huge finale to the theater's 20th Anniversary Season, which opens this week.

"Into the Woods Jr." follows a Baker and his wife, who wish to have a child; Cinderella, who wishes to attend the King's Festival; and Jack, who wishes his cow would give milk. When the Baker and his wife learn that they cannot have a child because of a Witch's curse, the two set off on a journey to break the curse. Everyone's wish is granted, but the consequences of their actions return to haunt them later with disastrous results.

This fresh interpretation of 'Into the Woods Jr' is directed by Elizabeth Crase and runs on the Orphan Girl Theatre Stage April 26, 27, 28 and May 4, 5 at 7 p.m. and April 29th and May 6th at 2 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for kids 10 and under.

The matinee on April 28th is our Spotlight Performance. Pre-Sale tickets for this event are offered at a discounted rate, as we invite younger theatre goers and people with special needs to come and enjoy theatre in a judgment free environment. Standard ticket prices apply at the door.

Visit www.orphangirl.org or call 406-782-5657 for tickets and more information.

The Great Outdoors

Early spring fishing worth the trip

By Paul Vang

It's difficult to really get into springtime mode when winter keeps trying to reprise its now-getting-old act. That first snow, back in September, was welcome, because it finally put an end to the summer fire season. In late April we would welcome something on the order of warm sunshine, and for precipitation, a nice, gentle rain would be just fine. We don't want any more of that fluffy white stuff for a few months.

Still, just over a week ago, I did find a day without snow to get out of town and go fishing. It was just a couple days after a snowstorm, but we take these breaks when we find them.

Some people were at home, paying the price of procrastination, and were up to their ears in receipts and other assorted slips of paper, hoping to beat the April 17 tax deadline. I procrastinated, also, but I was still done with the annual chore by the end of March.

While I call the Big Hole River my "home water," the lower Madison River is my home away from home, when it comes to early season fishing. As the hydro dam at the head of the Beartrap Canyon controls water flows, it tends to warm up a little earlier and gets some early hatches.

While it wasn't snowing on the day of my outing, it was cold and windy, though still tolerable—if you had enough layers on to cut the wind and stay warm.

An encouraging sign was seeing another angler catch what looked like a good-sized fish, while I was putting on my waders. I called out and said, "Nice fish!" He said it was the fourth one he'd caught, so he was pretty happy.

I walked upstream to a spot that has been good to me in recent years and started casting a bead-head nymph into the current, and was surprised to feel a fish on the end of my line within the first minute. It wasn't a trophy by any means, but I won't turn up my nose at a 10-inch brown trout, my first trout for 2018.

Kiri, my Labrador retriever, seemed especially pleased about that fish.

While that fish broke the ice, so to speak, we didn't have a feeding frenzy, by any means. In fact, after what seemed a long time without any further bites, I decided to check my fly, figuring it might be dragging a twig or bit of vegetation. Instead, my fly was missing. I don't know if I had tied a weak knot or my tippet was nicked, but the fly was gone and it partially explained why I wasn't catching fish.

After a lunch break, I got back in the water and noted a couple rises. Taking a closer look, I could see a flotilla of little mayflies floating downstream. The cloudy conditions were favorable to a bluewing olive, or baetis, if you prefer, hatch. I was using a pheasant tail nymph and that produced another little brown trout, almost a twin of the one I'd caught earlier.

All things considered, catching two little brown trout might not be the making of a good fish story, but after a long, cold winter, I was happy.

Incidentally, that lower Madison River and the Beartrap Canyon was a busy place. Besides lots of anglers, both waders and floaters, on the water, the rocky road going up the canyon along the river was busy with hikers, runners, bikers, rock climbers, and others on their way to the wilderness area trail-head. In spite of the chilly weather, there were some campers getting ready for a weekend on the river.

If you are looking for solitude, you won't find it on the lower Madison, and in fact, river users and Fish, Wildlife & Parks are in the process of developing a recreation management plan, similar to what we have on the Big Hole River.

Still, the river is amazingly productive and if you need some early season action, it's worth a jaunt in that direction.

Alley Rally to feature multiple locations

As temperatures begin rise across Montana many of us are beginning to work on our lawns and on "spring cleaning" in our homes. With that in mind Butte-Silver Bow County will begin our annual Alley Rally program. Butte-Silver Bow County will be making several changes to benefit more of the community. These changes include multiple locations instead of one centralized location. The locations and dates of activity are listed below:

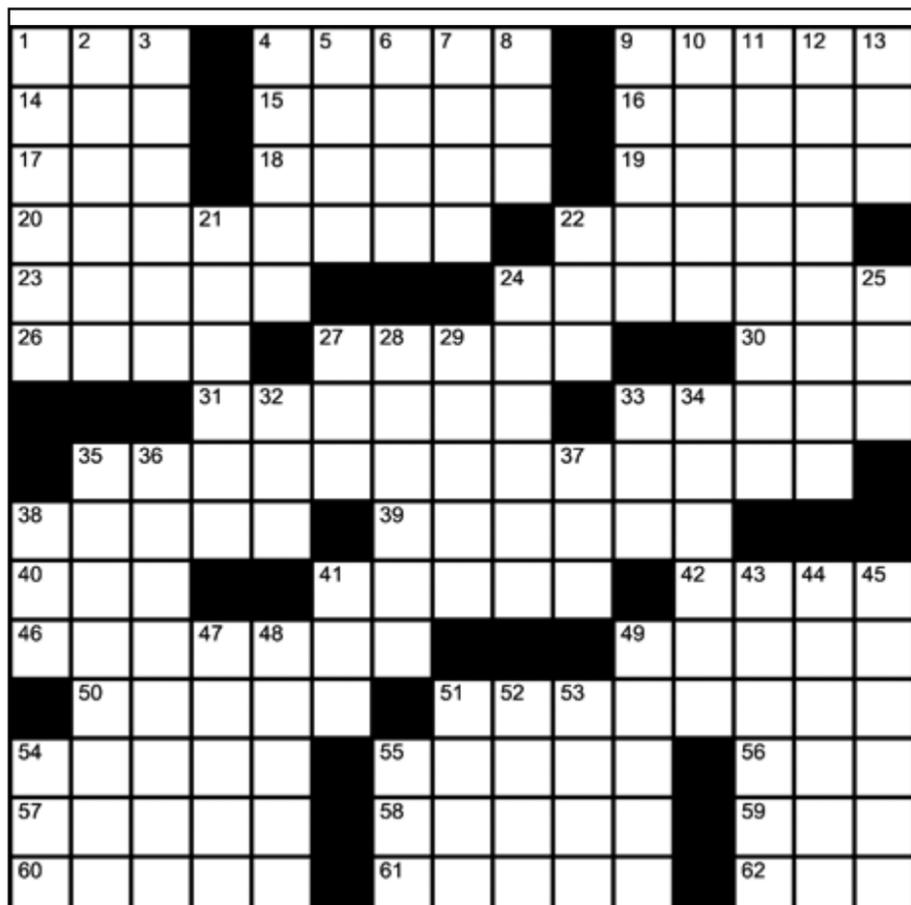

- May 18th and 19th - Hillcrest Area, Civic Center, and Race Track
- May 25th and 26th - Spolar, High Altitude Center, and Sesame Street
- June 1st and 2nd - Cinders Park, Old Glory, and Missoula Gulch
- June 8th and 9th - Hillcrest Area, Civic Center, and Race Track
- June 15th and 16th - Spolar, High Altitude Center, and Sesame Street
- June 22nd and 23rd - Cinders Park, Old Glory, and Missoula Gulch

Each location will be staffed by Butte-Silver Bow employee(s) to assist in placing items in the garbage containers. The City-County of Butte-Silver will also be offering large garbage containers to neighborhood cleanup efforts available by contacting John Moodry from the Community Enrichment Department at (406) 497-6525.

The City-County of Butte-Silver Bow would also like to remind the public that the landfill will be open 7 days a week from 8:00 am to 5:30 pm at the main site and 5:30 pm to 8:00 pm at the afterhours site. These hours will stay in effect until the end of October. As always, we remind the public that all loads going to the landfill are required to be covered.

For any additional questions of comments please contact John Moodry from the Community Enrichment Department at (406) 497-6525.

Afterschool events for Teens: The Butte Public Library hosts BSBPL Coding Club on Tuesdays and on Anime/Manga Club on Thursdays--both from 4:00-5:00. All events are open to all ages and abilities. BSBPL Coding Club offers a chance to learn JAVA coding with www.coding.org. Code Studio's easy to use tutorials are designed to teach Computer Science Basics for students of all ages. You can start anytime and work at your own pace. Either bring your own laptops or use one of ours to the third floor of Butte Public Library. The Anime and Manga club is for those who love these genres to get together and watch, read, discuss and possibly even produce their own. Anyone who is interested should stop by the Teen Room on the second floor of Butte Public Library. The group will decide each week what we do--watch anime, discuss a book, or talk about member's work. Call 723-3361 for more information.

St. James Auxiliary will host Collective Goods Books are Fun Sale on May 3rd and 4th at St. James. The sale will feature new books, electronics, home goods, kids gifts and more! Join us for the sale on Thursday, May 3rd, from 10am-5pm and Friday, May 4th, from 8 am-2pm. The sale will be located in hallway. Proceeds will fund future auxiliary projects, such as, scholarships, blankets for babies, mother and child identification and other patient comforting efforts.

The Recipes Writers Book Club is a twist on the traditional book club as it's a cook book club. The club meets on the second Monday of the month at 6:00 pm. Please call the library, 723-3361, for location details.

Women's Group--MILP is hosting a Women's Group for women with disabilities. This is a group of sharing and support at 2 p.m. every Wednesday at MILP, 3475 Monroe, Independent Living Suite, 103. For more details, please call Mike Phyfield or Alice de Chelley at 782-

"Never forget, people DIED for the eight hour workday"
-Rebecca Gordon

Wednesday, April 25:

The New York Times declares the struggle for an 8-hour workday to be "un-American" and calls public demonstrations for the shorter hours "labor disturbances brought about by foreigners." Other publications declare that an 8-hour workday would bring about "loafing and gambling, rioting, debauchery and drunkenness". -1886
IWW Marine Transport Workers begin West Coast strike. -1923
Rev. Ralph David Abernathy and 100 others are arrested while picketing a Charleston, S.C., hospital in a demand for Union recognition. -1969

Thursday, April 26:

On the orders of President Roosevelt, the U.S. Army seizes the Chicago headquarters of the Montgomery Ward & Co. after management defies the National Labor Relations Board decision favoring the Union workers. -1944
As the U.S. car industry tanks, the UAW agrees to concessions with Chrysler Corp. in return for a 55 percent stake in the company. The Union then sold the shares to fund a trust that took over retiree health care costs. -2009

Friday, April 27:

First U.S. strike for 10-hour day, by Boston carpenters. -1825
Social Security system makes its first benefit payment. -1937
A cooling tower for a power plant under construction in West Virginia collapses, killing 51 Workers. OSHA cited contractors for 20 violations, including failures to field test concrete. The cases were settled for $85,000 (total) - about $1,700 per Worker killed. -1978

Saturday, April 28:

Coal mine collapses at Eccles, W.Va., killing 181 workers. -1914
A total of 119 workers die in Benwood, W.Va., coal mine disaster. -1924
The AFL-CIO sets April 28 as "Workers Memorial Day" to honor the hundreds of thousands of workers killed and injured on the job every year. -1970
Aloha Airlines Boeing 737 roof tears off in flight; stewardess and AFA Union member, Clarabelle "C.B." Lansing falls over 24,000 feet to her death. -1988

Sunday, April 29:

1,000 Western Federation of Miners, angry over low wages, the firing of Union members and the planting of spies in their ranks by mine owners, seize a train, load it with 3,000 pounds of dynamite, and blow up the mill at the Bunker Hill mine in Idaho completely destroying it. President McKinley responded by sending in black soldiers from Texas, with orders to round up the miners and imprison them in specially built "bullpens".

From 1899 to 1901, the U.S. Army occupied the Coeur d'Alene mining region in order to protect mine owner profits and the Capitalist interest. -1899

Monday, April 30:

50,000 workers in Chicago on strike (30,000 more join in the next day) in support of the 8-hour work day. The strike brought Chicago's manufacturing to a standstill. On May 3rd, Chicago cops murder 4 Union members to protect the Capitalist interest. A mass demonstration was called for the 4th, in Haymarket Square, where a cop will be killed by an unknown assailant. Ultimately, 8 activists (some not even in attendance) will be tried for murder and sentenced to death. This event, known as the Haymarket Massacre, will be the inspiration for International Workers' Day (Labor Day), celebrated on May 1st in every country in the world except the U.S. -1886
The TWU (Transport Workers Union) won $9.5 million in pensions, which the Fifth Avenue Coach Company robbed from workers, for former employees after long court battle. -1965

Tuesday, May 1:

Mary Harris "Mother" Jones, school teacher, fearless Labor Leader (Knights of Labor, UMW, IWW co-founder), Champion of the working class and the "Most dangerous woman in America", born in County Cork, Ireland. She once said, "If they want to hang me, let them. And on the scaffold I will shout Freedom for the working class!" -1830
The first International Labor Day celebrated world-wide except in the U.S.A. The U.S. decided to create its own labor day in September to undercut world worker solidarity and to white wash away its violent history of repressing American workers, strikes and worker protest. -1889
1,200 members of the Iron Molders Union in Milwaukee struck for shorter hours and more pay. They lost the strike after 2 years of bitter struggle. One employer, Allis-Chalmers, spent $21,700 to hire the Burr-Herr Detective Agency, resulting in more than 200 assaults on Union members, including Union leader Peter Cramer, who was killed. The agency offered $10 for each striker they beat up. -1906
